Cities in Transition Rita Schneider-Sliwa, 2006-01-23 This book was written with the aim of showing that even in the era of globalization developments appearing in cities are not subject to almost unconditional global forces Rather universal forces are decisive eventualities in the process of urban restructuring often influencing its course and speed yet developments and particularities within a city strongly influence the course of events and the extent to which negative characteristics of globalization might occur Berlin Brussels Hanoi Ho Chi Minh City Hong Kong Jerusalem Johannesburg Moscow St Petersburg Sarajevo and Vienna Using these important cities the special relationship between global and local regional forces is analyzed The case studies were selected based on their political and cultural context and the fact that their social and political fabric was subject to major changes in the recent past How global processes manifest themselves locally depends to a great extent on how development processes and endogenic potentials are initiated locally in order to cope with the new global economic and societal conditions     The Post-Socialist City Kiril Stanilov, 2007-08-13 In the large body of literature produced during the last fifteen years on the transformation of Eastern European societies after the fall of communism studies investigating changes in urban form and structure have been quite rare Yet a profound reorganization of the manner in which urban space is appropriated has taken place impacting the life of over 200 million urban residents in the region The patterns of spatial organization which have been established during this fairly limited but critical timeframe are likely to set the direction of future urban development in CEE cities for a long time This book focuses on the spatial transformations in the most dynamically evolving urban areas of post socialist Central and Eastern Europe linking the restructuring of the built environment with the underlying processes and forces of socio economic reforms We hope that the detailed accounts of the spatial transformations in a key moment of urban history in the region will enhance our understanding of the linkages between society and space adding to the knowledge that is needed for resolving the difficult challenges facing cities throughout the globe in the beginning of the twenty first century     Consumer Culture, Branding and Identity in the New Russia Graham H.J. Roberts, 2016-04-14 As shopping has been transformed from a chore into a major source of hedonistic pleasure a specifically Russian consumer culture has begun to emerge that is unlike any other This book examines the many different facets of consumption in today's Russia including retailing advertising and social networking Throughout emphasis is placed on the inherently visual not to say spectacular nature both of consumption generally and of Russian consumer culture in particular Particular attention is paid to the ways in which brands both Russian and foreign construct categories of identity in order to claim legitimacy for themselves What emerges is a fascinating picture of how consumer culture is being reinvented in Russia today in a society which has one nostalgic eye turned towards the past and the other utopian eye set firmly on the future Borrowing concepts from both marketing and cultural studies the approach throughout is interdisciplinary and will be of considerable interest to researchers students and practitioners wishing to gain invaluable insights into one of the most lucrative and exciting of today's emerging markets      Enterprising Worlds Jay D. Gatrell, Neil Reid, 2007-05-16 Enterprising World represents the culmination of several years of work by geographers, planners and economists. The chapters represent the collective efforts of the International Geographical Union's Commission on the Dynamics of Economic Spaces. This collection is the result of the 2005 annual meeting in Toledo, Ohio, USA. The chapters have been selected based on their contribution to the broader community of economic geographers and policymakers and to demonstrate the inherent interconnectedness of these themes and at times the conceptual tension that exists between ethics, economics and the environment insofar as these important issues shape the contours and cleavages of contemporary regional development. In particular, the chapters represent the diversity of perspectives on these issues. The authors provide insight into the workings of a variety of communities, regions and nations as they seek to balance economic growth with the growing necessity to simultaneously promote ethical and sustainable regional development. As such, this book is truly international in both scale and scope and provides the reader with a survey of emerging and established concepts, theories and conflicts in economic geography      Geospatial Technologies and Homeland Security Daniel Sui, 2008-05-25 Homeland security and context. In the Geographical Dimensions of Terrorism, GDOT Cutter et al. 2003, the first book after 9/11 to address homeland security and geography, we developed several thematic research agendas and explored intersections between geographic research and the importance of context, both geographical and political, in relationship to the concepts of terrorism and security. It is good to see that a great deal of new thought and research continues to flow from that initial research agenda, as illustrated by many of the papers of this new book entitled Geospatial Technologies and Homeland Security: Research Frontiers and Future Challenges. Context is relevant not only to understanding homeland security issues broadly but also to the conduct of research on geospatial technologies. It is impossible to understand the implications of a homeland security strategy, let alone hope to make predictions, conduct meaningful modeling and research or assess the value and dangers of geospatial technologies without consideration of overarching political, social, economic and geographic contexts within which these questions are posed      Political Economies of Landscape Change James L. Jr. Wescoat, Douglas M. Johnston, 2007-12-05 Places of Power: Political Economies of Landscape Change asks how politics and economics transform the landscapes we inhabit. This volume explores the connections between political economy and landscape change through a series of conceptual essays and case studies. In so doing, it speaks to a broad readership of landscape architects, geographers and related fields of social and environmental research. The book consists of an introductory essay with nine chapters commissioned from leading geographers, landscape architects, political scientists and economists, and a concluding essay on implications for future landscape inquiry and design. The book is organized in three major sections. Part one, titled Landscapes of Struggle: Possibility and Prosperity, includes a chapter on new axioms for reading the landscape followed by two chapters that read processes of economic development and distress in mountain landscapes of the U.S. and South

America Part Two on Political and Economic Driving Forces of Landscape Change includes two chapters each on political driving forces political constructs and institutions and economic driving forces environmental economics and global financial markets Part Three titled Integrative Landscape Change compares innovative rural landscape policies in Europe and the U S and draws implications for future landscape inquiry planning and design

Geographical Education in a Changing World John Lidstone, Michael Williams, 2006-07-19 This book results from the work of the Commission on Geographical Education of the International Geographical Union Part 1 focuses on the distinctive traditions of school geography Part 2 reviews the state of school geography on a broad continental basis including national case studies by local experts The final chapters extrapolate from the present and point to likely future developments in the subject again with examples drawn from various countries

Dynamic Trip Modelling Robert G.V. Baker, 2006-08-05 The thesis of this book is that there are one set of equations that can define any trip between an origin and destination The idea originally came from work that I did when applying the hydrodynamic analogy to study congested traffic flows in 1981 However I was disappointed to find out that much of the mathematical work had already been done decades earlier When I looked for a new application I realised that shopping centre demand could be like a longitudinal wave governed by centre opening and closing times Further a solution to the differential equation was the gravity model and this suggested that time was somehow part of distance decay This was published in 1985 and represented a different approach to spatial interaction modelling The next step was to translate the abstract theory into something that could be tested empirically To this end I am grateful to my Ph D supervisor Professor Barry Garner who taught me that it is not sufficient just to have a theoretical model This book is an outcome of this on going quest to look at how the evolution of the model performs against real world data This is a far more difficult process than numerical simulations but the results have been more valuable to policy formulation and closer to what I think is spatial science The testing and application of the model required the compilation of shopping centre surveys and an Internet data set

The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells, 2006 Geographica helvetica , 2006 Annales de géographie , 2007 The Urban Now John R. Short, 2023-10-06 Drawing upon over a quarter of a century s worth of research The Urban Now illuminates our present urban condition John Rennie Short captures the main features of this moment of urban significance investigating the city as a crucial arena strategically located between global flows and national surfaces

Sidewalk City Annette Miae Kim, 2015-05-27 For most the term public space conjures up images of large open areas community centers for meetings and social events the ancient Greek agora for political debates green parks for festivals and recreation In many of the world s major cities however public spaces like these are not a part of the everyday lives of the public Rather business and social lives have always been conducted along main roads and sidewalks With increasing urban growth and density primarily from migration and immigration rights to the sidewalk are being hotly contested among pedestrians street vendors property owners tourists and governments around the world With Sidewalk City

Annette Miae Kim provides the first multidisciplinary case study of sidewalks in a distinctive geographical area. She focuses on Ho Chi Minh City, Vietnam, a rapidly growing and evolving city that throughout its history her multicultural residents have built up alternative legitimacies and norms about how the sidewalk should be used. Based on fieldwork over 15 years, Kim developed methods of spatial ethnography to overcome habitual seeing and recorded both the spatial patterns and the social relations of how the city's vibrant sidewalk life is practiced. In Sidewalk City, she transforms this data into an imaginative array of maps progressing through a primer of critical cartography to unveil new insights about the importance and potential of this quotidian public space. This richly illustrated and fascinating study of Ho Chi Minh City's sidewalks shows us that it is possible to have an aesthetic sidewalk life that is inclusive of multiple public aspirations and livelihoods, particularly those of migrant vendors.

Locating Right to the City in the Global South. Tony Roshan Samara, Shenjing He, Guo Chen, 2013. Drawing from scholars with extensive fieldwork experience, this volume covers sixteen cities in fourteen countries across a belt stretching from Latin America to Africa and the Middle East and into Asia Central, to what binds these cities are deeply rooted, complex and dynamic processes of social and spatial division that are being actively reproduced. These cities are not so much fracturing as they are being divided by governance practices informed by local histories and political contestation and refracted through or infused by market-based approaches to urban development. Through a close examination of these practices and resistance to them, this volume provides perspectives on neoliberalism and right to the city that advance our understanding of urbanism in the Global South.

Cities in Transition. Nirmala Rao, 2008-01-07. This is an up-to-date and topical treatment of how six major cities in Europe, North America, and Asia are coping with the new demands on urban government. Population expansion, the migration of new peoples, and disparities between cities and suburbs are longstanding features of the urban crisis. Today, city governments also face demands for popular participation and better public services while they struggle to position themselves in the new world economy. While each of the cities is located in its unique historical setting, the emphasis of the book is upon the common dilemmas raised by major planning problems and the search for more suitable approaches to governance and citizen involvement. A principal theme is the re-engineering of institutional structures designed to foster local responsiveness and popular participation The discussion is set in the context of the globalizing forces that have impacted to different degrees at different times upon London Tokyo Toronto Berlin Hyderabad and Atlanta Cities in Transition is a major and original addition to the comparative literature on urban governance Cities in Transition ,2000 Cities in Transformation - Transformation in Cities Ove Källtorp,1997 Many cities in different parts of the world have experienced a fundamental economic cultural and social transformation in recent decades This volume addresses the global processes of urban transformation empirically and theoretically in a number of case studies of particular cities The papers cover a range of research in terms of space time and aspects of urban reality Some case studies focus on urban life in the context of economic and social structure or urban renewal in the context of national and local politics Others deal more specifically with the interrelations between culture economy and space The academic focus is variously sociology political science economy geography and architecture
