Levi Strauss came to the United States from Germany in 1847. He stayed with his family in New York, where they owned a clothing store. In 1853, while the Gold Rush was in full swing, he moved to San Francisco, California and sold supplies to gold miners. His real success came when he and tailor Jacob Davis teamed up to make the first "blue jeans" for miners. These durable (sturdy) pants were popular with the miners and Strauss became a very wealthy man.

Today, the United Postal Service delivers mail by truck and by plane but it was not always delivered this way. In the past, mail was carried by stagecoaches and steamships. It was also carried on horses. For example, the Pony Express carried mail across the country to the gold fields of Sacramento, California in the 1860's. Around this same time, trains started to carry mail, especially with the completion of the Transcontinental Railroad.

Narwhals live in the cold waters of the Arctic Ocean. They are social animals and travel in groups called pods with about 20 narwhals per pod. A narwhal is a mammal that is related to the whale. Most narwhals have a long, sword like tusk above their mouths. The tusk is actually a tooth that has gone through the narwhal's upper lip. This tooth twirls as it grows and can grow up to eight feet long. Once broken, it will not grow back.

- 4 How do scientists know narwhals are social animals?
