so as to provide a new perspective in business English pedagogy Another study entitled Cognitive Studies in Translation by Xin Huang analyzes the cognitive studies of translation interpreting processes over the past three decades with focus on the issues examined the findings reached as well as the recent development She explains that cognitive studies of translation process examine the translation competence on line translation behaviors such as how the eye gazes and how the words are typed and the brain activities when doing translation Special interests are paid to the working memory problem solving the executive function and some linguistic relative factors such as text difficulty Over the past thirty years the interest in the field has been gaining considerable momentum and increasing issues have been involved Finally she concludes that with the advancement of technologies and interdisciplinary approaches the black box the previously unforeseeable cognitive activities of how human process translation can be unfolded Considering the importance of integrating theory with practice the proceedings are therefore compiled in such a way as to be balanced and inclusive in the hope of summarizing current accomplishments as well as providing certain insights for teaching and further research in the field of translation and interpretation studies

Translating Scripture for Sound and Performance James A. Maxey, Ernst

Wendland, 2012-11-01 The various studies presented in this anthology underscore the foundational matter of translation in biblical studies as understood from the specific perspective of Biblical Performance Criticism If the assumption for the biblical messages being received is not individual silent reading then the question becomes how does this public performative mode of communication affect the translation of this biblical material Rather than respond to this in general theoretical terms most in this collection of articles offer specific applications to particular Hebrew and Greek passages of Scripture Almost all the authors have firsthand experience with the translation of biblical materials into non European languages in communities who maintain a vibrant oral tradition The premise is that the original Scriptures which were composed in and for performance are being prepared again for live audiences who will receive these sacred texts not primarily in printed form but first and foremost in community by means of oral and visual media This volume is an invitation for others to join us in researching more intensely this intersection of sound performance and translation in a contemporary communication of the Word language groups Bible commentaries and translations are of lesser quality often due to the lack of training in Greek Hebrew and Aramaic for their authors and translators Additionally many commentaries are authored by those who are unfamiliar with the language church and culture of the target audience Further some language groups struggle with the quality of translations even of the biblical text itself A translation may not be based on the biblical languages but on a Bible translation in another modern language This can result in the theological perspective of the previous translators being unwittingly
