Rethinking Urban Transitions Andrés Luque-Ayala, Simon Marvin, Harriet Bulkeley, 2018 Rethinking Urban Transitions provides critical insight for societal and policy debates about the potential and limits of low carbon urbanism It draws on over a decade of international research undertaken by scholars across multiple disciplines concerned with analysing and shaping urban sustainability transitions It seeks to open up the possibility of a new generation of urban low carbon transition research which foregrounds the importance of political geographical and developmental context in shaping the possibilities for a low carbon urban future The book s contributions propose an interpretation of urban low carbon transitions as primarily social political and developmental processes Rather than being primarily technical efforts aimed at measuring and mitigating greenhouse gases the low carbon transition requires a shift in the mode and politics of urban development The book argues that moving towards this model requires rethinking what it means to design practise and mobilize low carbon in the city while also acknowledging the presence of multiple and contested developmental pathways Key to this shift is thinking about transitions not solely as technical infrastructural or systemic shifts but also as a way of thinking about collective futures societal development and governing modes a recognition of the political and contested nature of low carbon urbanism The various contributions provide novel conceptual frameworks as well as empirically rich cases through which we can begin to interrogate the relevance of socio economic political and developmental dimensions in the making or unmaking of low carbon in the city The book draws on a diverse range of examples including world cities and ordinary cities from North America South America Europe Australia Africa India and China to provide evidence that expectations aspirations and plans to undertake purposive socio technical transitions are both emerging and encountering resistance in different urban contexts Rethinking Urban Transitions is an essential text for courses concerned with cities climate change and environmental issues in sociology politics urban studies planning environmental studies geography and the built environment

Leading Cities Elizabeth Rapoport,Michele Acuto,Leonora Grcheva,2019-03-06 Leading Cities is a global review of the state of city leadership and urban governance today Drawing on research into 202 cities in 100 countries the book provides a broad international evidence base grounded in the experiences of all types of cities It offers a scholarly but also practical assessment of how cities are led what challenges their leaders face and the ways in which this leadership is increasingly connected to global affairs Arguing that effective leadership is not just something created by an individual Elizabeth Rapoport Michele Acuto and Leonora Grcheva focus on three elements of city leadership leaders the structures and institutions that underpin them and the tools used to drive change Each of these elements are examined in turn as are the major urban policy issues that leaders confront today on the ground The book also takes a deep dive into one particular example of tool or instrument of city leadership the strategic urban plan Leading Cities provides a much needed overview and introduction to the theory and practice of city leadership and a starting point for future research on and evaluation of city leadership and its practice around the world

Governing Cities in a Global Era R. Hambleton,Jill Gross,2008-01-28 This book is about the role that ideas institutions and actors play in structuring how we govern cities and more specifically what projects or paths are taken Global changes require that we rethink governance and urban policy and that we do so through the dual lens of theory and practice
