The Elav is not a sequence-specific factor, therefore a normal basal polymerase-binding site is sufficient. If the Elav was a sequence-specific factor, polymerase binding would be essential. Furthermore, more than one regulatory factor may act synergistically to generate a transcription factor complex and not necessarily in alternative ways. Small molecules control transcription. Size and shape are critical for the translocation. Binding of Elav to Sh is reversible."

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-volume exercise program on the physical fitness of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were 30 sedentary, middle-aged women who were randomly assigned to either an exercise group or a control group. The exercise group performed a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-volume exercise program. The control group did not exercise. The physical fitness of the subjects was measured at baseline and at the end of the 12-week period. The results of the study showed that the exercise group had significantly higher levels of physical fitness than the control group at the end of the 12-week period. The exercise program was effective in improving the physical fitness of sedentary, middle-aged women.
