Extending Themselves A. Graham Tipple,2000-01-01 Many countries have large stocks of government built housing which for various reasons are in poor physical conditions and or do not conform to the expectations of occupants The occupants of such housing frequently make unauthorized but quite considerable changes and extensions transformations to their dwellings This book examines user initiated transformations to government built housing in Bangladesh Egypt Ghana and Zimbabwe surveyed in a research program sponsored by the UK Department for International Development The 1600 dwellings surveyed show how relatively low income households are capable of supplying new rooms and services both to improve their own housing conditions and to supply rental rooms or accommodation for family members living rent free The new construction is often of at least as good quality as the original structures and sometime envelopes the original in a new skin It is clear that transformation adds accommodation and services to existing housing upgrades the housing stock and creates variety out of uniformity The study leads to policy suggestions to encourage transformations for the renewal of government housing These include the provision of loan finance the encouragement of co operation between neighbors especially in multi storey housing and the planned colonization of open space next to the dwellings where plots are not provided For new housing it is clear that designs for new areas are only the beginning of an on going development process rather than a blueprint for once for all development

New Technologies for Toxicity Testing Michael Balls,Robert D. Combes,Nirmala Bhogal,2012-03-22 The central theme running through this volume on New Technologies for Toxicity Testing is the development and application of advanced techniques for cell and tissue culture as well as new markers and endpoints of toxicity as alternatives to the traditional paradigm of relying on data from laboratory animal tests to undertake labelling and risk assessment. Of course many of the techniques and methods described in this volume are in the early stages of development and much work will be needed to ensure their further improvement, optimisation and validation. However we are confident that this will be achieved and that just as with the in vitro assays that were validated and granted regulatory acceptance over the last decade these and many other new advanced methods will likewise become part of the toxicologist's improved toolbox for coping with increasingly stringent and numerous regulatory requirements and test chemicals while placing less reliance on traditional testing paradigms.
