Wanberg,2018-09-15 The modern world we live in often requires components made from materials that are stronger and lighter than the more common materials of steel aluminum and wood Today everything from bicycle frames to aircraft components are made from composite materials such as Kevlar and Carbon Fiber Unlike those other materials composite components don t rust or rot and they won t be dented by a minor impact With the growing interest in these new high tech materials there are more and more individuals looking for help in building their own components from composites While most of us assume that building from composites requires special skills and tooling found only in specialist shops and well equipped industrial facilities nothing could be further from the truth Professor of Industrial Design well known author John

Wanberg uses 176 pages and more than 400 images to explain and illustrate the techniques and tools that readers need to make their own components from composite materials Whether it s a simple piece that requires no mold or a more elaborate fabrication project that requires both a mold and vacuum bagging all the necessary how to information is contained in this new book from Wolfgang Publications This new book from John Wanberg combines materials from four previous books plus adds a wealth of new material on the latest trends and techniques in the world of high tech composite materials All of the projects and techniques included in this 176 page book are aimed at individuals and small shops Composite Materials Fabrication Handbook #2 John Wanberg,2010-04-15 Written for those who want to enhance their composite projects Advanced molding techniques are demonstrated compression molding vacuum bagging trapped rubber insert molding inflatable bladder molding Composite Materials John Wanberg,William Longyard,2014 Nearly every page is allocated to photos that lead the reader through detailed how to sequences From making the mold to cutting fabric creating a vacuum Nine sequences total show how to make your own light and strong parts Handbook of Composite Fabrication Güneri Akovali,2001 This volume is a concise reference book for someone who has just started working in the composites field as well as for technologists already active in the area The chapters in this handbook have been written by experts in their fields and so the information on a particular subject area can be regarded as state of the art Each chapter is fully referenced illustrated and includes case studies and applications of polymer composite fabrications MacRae's Blue Book ,1990
