Foreign Direct Investment And Urban Growth In China:

Foreign Direct Investment and Urban Growth in China Lei Wang, 2016-04-15 This book puts forward an institutional explanation of the recent dynamics of foreign direct investment FDI in China It argues that the concentration of FDI in the Chinese manufacturing economy since the beginning of this century is largely the result of China's entrepreneurial urban growth strategy which was in turn motivated by the overall political and fiscal structures of China and was facilitated by urban land use under the manipulation of municipalities By identifying the interactions between cross border capital flow national regulations and local responses this book not only provides a fresh understanding of China's FDI pattern from an urban perspective that has been rare among publications on similar topics but also sheds light on the drivers underlying China's rapid economic growth and its implications for sustainable development It also stands as a useful reference for other countries and regions that plan to launch their own state led development projects

The Role of the State in China's Urban System Development Jiejing Wang, 2021-02-13

This book investigates how the state intervenes in the urban system in China in the post reform period To do so it constructs a conceptual framework based on the perspective of political hierarchy suggesting that the state power is hierarchically organized in China's urban system leading to variations in urban government capacities among cities The book reveals that the state has largely achieved the goal of its national urban system policy to strictly control the scale of large cities resulting in the under development of the large cities if they are mainly developing according to the market force However this has become less influential with the advances toward a market economy Further state regulation and policies have reduced the gaps between cities at the top and bottom of the urban hierarchy The book argues that the Urban Administrative System UAS is an important tool for the state to regulate urban system development and the administrative level has a significant effect on urban growth performance It contends that China's urban system is strongly shaped by the omnipresent state through the UAS which hierarchically differentiates between the urban growth processes By controlling the administrative level upgrading process the state can prevent the size and number of cities from increasing too rapidly This theoretical and empirical enquiry highlights the fact that the hierarchical power relations among cities and the resulting variations in urban government capacities are the key to understanding the role of the state in China's urban system development in the post reform period

Government Institutions and the Dynamics of Urban Growth in China Andrés Rodríguez-Pose, Min Zhang, 2019 Economic growth in China in recent decades has largely rested on the dynamism of its cities High economic growth has coincided with measures aimed at improving the efficiency of local governments and with a mounting political drive to curb corruption Yet the connection between government institutions and urban growth in China remains poorly understood This paper is the first to look into the connection between government efficiency and corruption on the one hand and urban growth in China on the other and to assess what is the role of institutions relative to more traditional factors for economic growth in Chinese cities Using panel data for 283 cities over the period between 2003 and 2014 the results show that urban growth in China is a consequence of a combination of favourable human capital innovation density local conditions foreign direct investment FDI and city level government institutions Both government quality especially for those cities with the best governments and the fight against corruption at the city level have a direct effect on urban growth Measures to tackle corruption at the provincial level matter in a more indirect way by raising or lowering the returns of other growth inducing factors

Urban Growth and Development in Asia Graham P. Chapman, Ashok K. Dutt, 2019-01-15 First published in 1999 this volume begins with a panoramic survey by Nigel Harris of the drama of Asian Urbanization based on the inaugural plenary lecture he gave to the 5th Asian Urbanization Conference held in London In the following chapters many experts and practitioners from different countries and cities provide a stimulating portrayal of the processes and outcomes of one of the greatest shifts of population not just absolutely but proportionately as well ever to have occurred in human history Asia includes more than half the world's population but apart from the Tiger economies and Japan it is still overwhelmingly rural In the last decade or so urbanization has really begun to take off and the shift of population to the cities represents one of the greatest population movements the planet has ever seen By 2030 more than 50% of Asia's population will be urban and between now and then more than 500 million people in Asia will have moved looking for jobs housing food and water They will be both part of a problem and most of the solution building around them the cities they will live in Population Mobility, Urban Planning and Management in China Tai-Chee Wong, Sun Sheng Han, Hongmei Zhang, 2015-03-24 This volume contains essays that examine contemporary urban and regional planning and development in China Through in depth theoretical and empirical analysis it provides insights into the urban policies and operational mechanisms of this colossal transitional economy which has presented unprecedented challenges and dynamics Inside readers will discover the causes and consequences of rapid urbanization that have led to a series of environmental economic and social planning and management measures designed to achieve quality urban living The essays also detail efforts in adopting the latest options in city building such as specific urban planning approaches in developing large city regions building cities without slums constructing new townships and green urbanism including eco city and sustainable transport In addition coverage explores financial management and support as a means to encourage urbanization and urban economic growth in less developed regions Overall the volume offers a wealth of concrete detailed information on conditions in different regions of China and features an extensive range of content methods and theory It provides readers with a comprehensive portrait of the chain relationship between rapid urbanization spatial planning and management throughout the country The book will serve as a useful reference for national and international consultancy services doing business or serving public interest in China It will also be of interest to an international audience seeking a better understanding of urban development and planning in China including university teachers students government agencies and general readers

Factors of EU Economic Growth Florin-Teodor Boldeanu, 2018-07-27 This book will appeal to scholars and policymakers who deal with and or are conducting research on the factors of economic growth At present there is no unified growth model that is feasible for every investigation As such this volume offers key insights into the factors that are most relevant in explaining growth variation at country regional and metropolitan levels In order to acquaint the reader with the concepts related to the subject two theoretical chapters detail the schools of thought and the models that were formulated in the past Three empirical chapters then present an up to date and a multi level investigation using the most comprehensive models for the European Union The results of this book are policy oriented and will serve to help close the gaps between EU countries and regions China's Urban Pattern Chuanglin Fang,Danlin Yu,Hanying Mao,Chao Bao,Jinchuan Huang,2018-08-21 The book embarks on the tasks to systematically analyze the macro background of the spatial patterns of China s urban development the theoretical foundations and framework and its changing trajectory From a quantitative perspective we attempt to evaluate the rationale behind the spatial patterns of China s urban development and systematically simulate the various scenarios From the simulation results we propose the optimizing goals priorities models and strategies for the spatial patterns of China s urban development The work in this book attempts to provide constructive suggestions and potential strategies to support the effort to optimize the spatial patterns of China s urban development It would be a valuable reference for planning departments development and reform committees and science and technology administrative departments at various governmental levels It could also be a valuable addition to graduate students of urban planning urban development urban geography and relevant disciplines China's Urban Construction Land Development Tao Liu,2019-10-16 This book examines the nature and internal dynamics of China s urban construction land UCL development drawing insights from the recently developed theory of regional political ecology Based on the author s original research it identifies two different types of UCL development in China namely top down formal development in the legal and regulated domain and spontaneous and informal bottom up development in the semi legal poorly regulated gray domain Presenting a systematic analysis and comparison it reveals a scale and speed of informal land development no less significant than that of formal land development although informal land development tends to be scattered pervasive difficult to track and largely overlooked in research and policy formation Contrary to the popular perception of the peasantry as passive victims of land development this book uncovers an intriguing dynamic in which the peasantry has played an increasingly pro active role in developing their rural land for urban uses in informal markets Further based on an investigation of UCL development in Beijing and Shenzhen it shows an interesting trajectory in which the uneven growth and utilization of UCL are contingent upon the various developmental milieus in different places China s land institutions based on an urban rural dual land system are not conducive to the ultimate goal of saving and efficiently utilizing land Accordingly an urban rural integrated land market and management system is highly advisable The theoretical and empirical enquiry presented challenges the perceived notion of China s UCL development as the outcome of market demand and state supply Further it argues for an inclusive treatment of the informality that has characterized urbanization in many developing countries and for a reassessment of the role played by the peasantry in land based urbanization State of the Urban Youth, 2010/2011 ,2010 This report is based on data from UN HABITAT s Global Urban Indicator Database as well as surveys of and focus group discussions with selected representative groups of young
