critically analyses the current education political strategy of cultivating excellence in education It shows how the new policy for selecting talented students in Denmark deconstructs the compromise from which the comprehensive school was built and reduces equal opportunities It discusses how the current practice of measurement selection and guidance of talented students brings about significant changes in education policies in pedagogic practices a restructuring of school organisations and changed requirements of teachers It explains how the internal differentiation of education systems based on self selection and free choice but also on new assessment techniques tends to widen the inequality gap between students The analysis clearly shows the relationship between the circulation of new ideas and normative frameworks at international level and their transfer into national policies while situating these developments in a socio historical perspective The book illustrates by means of a concrete case study with important empirical data that demonstrate the reality and influence of this new policy on the day to day work of teachers The Class Sonia Livingstone, Julian Sefton-Green, 2016-05-03 An intimate look at how children network identify learn and grow in a connected world Read Online at connectedyouth.nyupress.org Do today's youth have more opportunities than their parents. As they build their own social and digital networks, does that offer new routes to learning and friendship? How do they navigate the meaning of education in a digitally connected but fiercely competitive, highly individualized world? Based upon fieldwork at an ordinary London school, The Class examines young people's experiences of growing up and learning in a digital world. In this original and engaging study, Livingstone and Sefton Green explore youth values, teenagers' perspectives on their futures, and their tactics for facing the opportunities and challenges that lie ahead. The authors follow the students as they move across their different social worlds in school, at home, and with their friends, engaging in a range of activities from video games to drama clubs and music lessons. By portraying the texture of the students' everyday lives, The Class seeks to understand how the structures of social class and cultural capital shape the development of personal interests, relationships, and autonomy. Providing insights into how young people's social, digital, and learning networks enable or disempower them, Livingstone and Sefton Green reveal that the experience of disconnections and blocked pathways is often more common than that of connections and new opportunities.

The Taming of Education
 Rob Creasy, 2017-08-24 This book evaluates contemporary approaches to education with a particular focus on the ways in which assessment shapes the educational experience and influences pupils and students. It adopts a critical approach, arguing that there is a need for students to develop critical thinking skills, be flexible, and have the capacity for originality. Education has increasingly come to be seen as a process with qualifications as the output; however, as economies change, attaining advantage increasingly relies on creativity and originality. Unfortunately, in the quest to remove uncertainty from education, creativity and originality are often overlooked, and the result is that education is impoverished. Creasy argues here that there is no single factor that has shaped education and led to this situation; rather, developments within education can be seen as having been shaped by a range of forces such as neoliberalism, New Public Management, standardization, and internationalization. This is not to claim any deliberate undermining of education, but the cumulative effect is that education is less and less fit for purpose. Written for anyone involved in education—student, teacher, or manager—this book draws upon Education Studies, Sociology, and Social Policy to offer a compelling critique of contemporary education.

Politics of Quality Improvement in English Further Education
 Zahid Naz, 2023-01-12 This book offers a rich account of how quality improvement agendas, informed by neoliberalism, create contradictory and complex contexts in which teachers produce different types of practices for specific purposes. Drawing on Michel Foucault's analytical tools, archaeology and genealogy, this book weaves together findings from classroom observations field notes and interviews to explore the dichotomies between practices focussing on day to day pedagogies and practices concerned with performance management and accountability initiatives By attending to a Foucauldian conception of power and counter conduct it explores new means of defining quality in teaching spaces After considering existing quality assurance judgements the book illuminates the significance of moving slightly away from an institutionalised enterprise culture and loosening relations with reductionist approaches as a starting point While doing so it reworks the idea of quality by presenting other ways of looking at the complex character of pedagogical real s with new insights into an emergentist and process oriented conception of teaching practices The book argues that we need to unlearn our existing knowledge of quality that overlooks contextual constraints and opportunities enmeshed in teaching practices It questions the assumptions that the existing methods of observation are capable of quantifying the quality of education in a classroom or in a college in toto By introducing the idea of documentisation the book breaks new theoretical ground to show that this so called system of robust accountabilities is not as self evident as we believe and why we must rethink quality by unthinking our current common sense Written for researchers in educational studies practising teachers and policy makers this book combines profound insights from theory and contemporary teaching practices with clear guidelines as to how educational policy making should be approached

A Political Sociology of Education Policy Helen M. Gunter,2023-01-13

Critical education policy research has a long tradition of political sociology Drawing on data and analysis from the Education Policy Knowledgeable Polity EPKP project supported by funders such as the British Academy and the Economic and Social Research Council this book presents a new political sociology for framing conducting and presenting critical education policy research In doing so it will be the first in the field to interconnect political thinking from Arendt with sociological thinking from Bourdieu producing innovative analysis for and about educational reform

Children, Young People and Care John Horton,Michelle Pyer,2017-04-28

The very notions of childhood and youth are intimately connected to contemporary norms practices and spaces of care caring and care giving The provision of care is widely figured as both the primary responsibility of parents carers and practitioners who work with children and young people and the primary factor in shaping children and young people s development education socialisation wellbeing and contentment However children and young people themselves are rarely figured as key actors in the provision of care An overwhelming presumption that children and young people are to be cared for has effectively marginalised their agency and responsibilities as carers or in relation to practices and spaces of care Bringing together a significant array of multidisciplinary work on children young people and families this collection draws together new research on the diverse lives and experiences of children and young people as carers as cared for and in relation to spaces and institutions of care It is the first collection specifically devoted to the subject of care in relation to childhood and youth As such the book will be a key resource for academics practitioners and students seeking leading edge empirical and conceptual material on this topic

Intersectionality, Transnationalism, and the History of Education Deirdre Raftery, Stephanie Spencer, 2024-10-26 This volume brings together a diverse range of contributors to explore the significance of intersectionality and transnationalism with reference to the history of education. The chapters cover a range of educational spaces and places and demonstrate the possibilities that theoretical approaches can offer to scholars at all levels of their academic career. The chapters focus specifically on women's activism in order to maintain a coherent framework of research that is brought together in an introduction and concluding thoughts. The significance of gender as relational and a symbol of power ensures that men and masculinities are not overlooked but recognized as integral to understanding gender dynamics as they affected women's education and the ways in which that education took place.

Ethics and Mathematics Education Paul Ernest, 2024-06-10 This edited volume is an inquiry into the ethics of mathematics education and to a lesser extent the ethics of mathematics. The imposition of mathematics for all raises questions of ethics. What are the ethics of teaching school mathematics? What are the costs as well as the benefits? What are the ethical issues raised by the official aims of mathematics teaching, the planned curriculum, the pedagogies employed in school and college mathematics and the assessment systems? These questions are addressed in the book as well as what systems of ethics we might use. The volume ventures into a burgeoning new field. It offers a unique set of investigations both theoretical and in terms of practices. It announces the ethics of mathematics education as a new subfield of research and includes valuable contributions from many of the best known researchers in mathematics education. Additionally, it is a valuable resource for students, teachers and researchers in the field. This is an enduring and classic source book in the field. From the wisdom of leading scholars to the little heard voices of students, this collection offers the reader many striking new insights into the ethics of mathematics and education.

Re-imagining Playwork through a Poststructural Lens Linda Jane Shaw, 2022-07-29 This book explores how poststructural theory can make an important contribution to the growing body of work on playwork as an academic field of practice and research. Drawing on theoretical concepts used by sociologists and philosophers such as the sociological imagination, Mills' hauntings and the fictive Derrida and technologies of power and the self, Foucault, the text considers how these devices may be methodologically productive for playwork research. It reframes research into children and childhood as a process in which research and practice are connected but diverse skills. The book raises questions around power and voice and highlights the complexity of research which involves human participants and their roles as researcher and/or researched. Chapters relate concepts from post-structural feminist research and frame them within the context of playwork practice through the use of vignettes constructed from stories told by playwork practitioners and the children with whom they work. A valuable addition to an emerging academic field, this book will be of great interest to researchers and students in the fields of playwork research, education and youth studies, early childhood studies and the sociology of education.

Quiet Classrooms, Educational Soundscapes, and the Power of Silence Pieter Verstraete, 2025-04-29 This highly novel book provides an exploration of the role of silence in the school setting and interrogates the value of silence and quiet in contemporary educational practices looking at pedagogies and classroom practice to guide this increasingly popular subdiscipline of the history of education Arguably the first contribution written in English on the educational value of silence within the history of education more broadly this book interrogates the way in which we encounter and label sounds and noises within the classroom and the ways in which these have come to dictate relationships between teachers and pupils in our contemporary society The chapters investigate sociocultural reasons for a Western problematization of silence and shyness of children and the wider impact on class participation and treatment The issues around children s sense of identity and teachers authority are explored in relation to silence as a powerful tool for a progressive understanding of learning Ultimately the book will guide thinking around educational acoustic surroundings and provide alternative vocabulary to talk about educational soundscapes and the real term impact on our learning environments Providing a novel and nuanced framework for studying schools as acoustic or sound spaces the book will be of interest to researchers scholars and academics in the fields of history of education curriculum studies and the theories of learning more broadly Translated by Emmeline Burdett on the basis of the original Dutch edition Leuven University Press 2022

Religion Matters Paul Babie,Rick Sarre,2020-03-02 This book draws together leaders in science the health sciences the humanities and the social sciences to investigate the role of religion its meaning and relevance for their area of specialization It provides a much needed fresh perspective on the way in which religion operates within the modern neo liberal world The book approaches the topic by way of a critical engagement between religion broadly defined and the individual disciplines in which each of the contributors is expert Rather than simply taking the dogmatic position that religion offers something to every possible discipline each of the chapters in this collection addresses the question is there something that religion can offer to the discipline in question That is the value of the book it takes a truly critical stance on the place of religion in contemporary society
