Forests Market And Intervention Failures Five Case Studies:

Forests: Market and Intervention Failures Soren Wibe, Tom Jones, 2013-11-05 The economic value of forest has long been recognized but the ways in which that value is calculated and the management policies adopted in consequence have all too often resulted in overuse and irreversible destruction This is spectacularly obvious around the Mediterranean basin but it is also true in northern Europe These five case studies commissioned by the OECD examine failures of forest management in Britain Spain Italy Germany and Sweden They look at both market and intervention policies and show how each can further the destruction of the forests and they set out ways in which future policies can evade the mistakes of the past Originally published in 1992 Forests Sören Wibe, Tom Jones, 1991 The state of food and agriculture , 1994 World Forests, Society and Environment Matti Palo, J. Uusivuori, 2012-12-06 This book addresses current global and regional issues concerning the world's forests societies and the environment from an independent and non governmental point of view A main message is that cooperation on a global scale is not only commendable but essential if solutions to the problems facing the world's forests are to be found To achieve this modern science needs to find a clearer picture of relationships between forests human activity and the environment and of the consequences of environmental change for the ability of societies to survive Part I Editorial Perspectives is analyzing the ongoing globalization processes of forests societies and the environment Part II Society and Environment reviews worldwide trends with significance for the future of forests and forestry While the trends are influenced by forest sector issues that sector is influenced to a much larger extent by external factors such as demography urbanization or technological development Part III Importance of Forests looks at the value of the goods and services of forests tangible and intangible market and non market and concludes that failure to recognize their full value is one of the crucial impediments to sustainable development In Part IV Global Forum scientists take up global forestry themes deforestation trade and the environment climate change biodiversity with the aim of stimulating wider discussion Part V Regional Forum looks at major themes of particular relevance to Africa Asia Pacific Latin America North America and Europe such as farm and agroforestry corruption and concessions urban forestry and environmental conflicts Part VI introduces the special theme forest sectors in transition economies Teams of scientists from Russia and China focus on the implications of the transition from plan to market economy illuminating both the very different nature of the forest sector in the two countries and the different transition paths that they have adopted In the past millennium the entire world has been discovered In the past half century the contribution of forests to the economy worldwide has been perceived while only recently have their societal and environmental benefits been globally recognized Globalization is a demanding process requiring knowledge and information This book offers knowledge facts and information but also values from diverse human and cultural perspectives about world forests society and environment to help us towards equity in our use of the global forest to create a clearer vision on a unasylya Making Forest Policy Work A.I. Fraser, 2013-04-17 Policy issues relating to forestry have been the subject of much debate in recent years and many countries and international agencies have recently or are currently in the process of revising their policies for forestry. Much of this debate has implied that previous policies have failed or been much less successful than had been hoped. There is a tendency to think of policy as a matter for governments but it is now more widely appreciated that all shareholders in the forestry sector have a legitimate interest in both the policy objectives and the means that will be used to implement it. This book is mainly concerned with the process of developing policy and the subsequent implementation than in specific content though many of the important issues which policies must address are discussed. It is based on a review of many case studies with which the author has been personally involved over the past 40 years.

Forest Quality Nigel Dudley, Rodolphe Schlaepfer, William Jackson, Jean-Paul Jeanrenaud, Sue Stolton, 2012-04-27 Deforestation is frequently a topic of discussion in the environmental arena but it is not just the number of trees that matters the quality of the forest is also important. Even where the forest area is stable or increasing there are often rapid changes in its character. Natural forests are being replaced by plantations or by intensively managed forests. Around the world forests are becoming younger and less diverse in both species and structure this has important impacts for biodiversity and also affects many human values. In this groundbreaking text forest quality is discussed as a useful new concept in forest conservation and management. Three main assessment criteria are used: authenticity, environmental benefits and social and economic benefits. The book describes a methodology and protocol for collecting and analysing data and outlines in detail the approach required with each indicator. The authors advocate a landscape approach to assessment and demonstrate how assessment works through a series of case studies that show how this approach can be used in many ways to help forest conservation management. This hands on manual is for professionals involved in forestry conservation and resource management worldwide and contains case study material from Europe, Asia, Africa and Latin America that demonstrates practical uses of the new landscape approach to forest conservation. Published with IUCN and WWF.

The Economics of the Tropical Timber Trade Edward B Barbier, Joanne C. Burgess Barbier, Joshua Bishop, Bruce Aylward, 2021-11-09 Originally published in 1994. The Economics of the Tropical Timber Trade provides a detailed analysis of the economic linkages between the trade and forest degradation. Based on a report prepared for the ITTO it looks at current and future market conditions at the time of publication and assesses the impacts on current and future market conditions and assesses the impacts on tropical forests of both the international timber trade and domestic demand. The authors examine the causes of deforestation and compare the environmental impacts of the timber trade with other factors such as the conversion of the forests to agriculture. Finally they assess the national and international trade policy options and discuss the potential role of interventions in the international timber trade in promoting efficient and sustainable use of forest resources. The book will be of interest to those concerned with forest management and policy, trade and environment and with the economics of conservation and resource use.

Paradise Lost? Edward B. Barbier, Joanne C.

Burgess Barbier, Carl Folke, 2019-09-18 Originally published in 1994 Paradise Lost is the outcome of a unique collaboration between economists and ecologists initiated by the Beijer Institute of the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences The book examines how the loss of biodiversity is one of the most serious problems the world faces and suggests that new interdisciplinary thinking is required to safeguard both us and the biosphere from the effects of species extinction The book examines how an integrated interdisciplinary approach to the conservation of biodiversity can understand and tackle the issue It provides an overview of the causes of the problem and examines previous approaches to dealing with it The book also addresses how the loss of biodiversity affects natural systems and provides an examination of environmental policy while discussing how this has been affected by the ecological limits to economic activity This book will be of interest to both academics and students of environmental sciences economics and politics Integrated Resource and Environmental Management, 2004 Integrated Resource and Environmental Management IREM can be defined as both a management process and a philosophy that takes into account the many values associated with natural resources within a particular area This book presents an overview and history of natural resource management from a global perspective It discusses the challenges facing IREM by examining issues such as conflict property rights and the role of science in the management of natural resource It also addresses the definition and application of IREM from several different contexts including real world applications planning frameworks and complex systems It provides a comprehensive aid in natural resource decision making within the context of the real world Proceedings of the Fifth Symposium on Oak Woodlands, 2002 General Technical Report PSW., 1978 International Environmental Economics Günther G. Schulze, Heinrich W. Ursprung, 2001 Environmental economics has traditionally been conducted in a closed economy mode Most textbooks on the subject still reflect this restriction international aspects of environmental problems are often not covered at all or dealt with as an afterthought In a world in which many environmental pollutants spill over national borders and national economies have become increasingly integrated this state of affairs is clearly unsatisfactory rational environmental policies undertaken in a globalizing world need to take the international economic and environmental relationships into consideration This perception has given rise to much literature employing an open economy approach to analysing environmental problems and policies After a decade of intensive research the time has come to take stock of the state of the art knowledge It is the objective of this volume to provide a review which will be of interest to scholars and graduate students of economics and political science who wish to familiarize themselves with the main issues and actors in the field of international environmental economics This collection of non technical issue oriented and comprehensive surveys is written by leading specialists in international and environmental economics Geomorphology and Global Environmental Change Olav Slaymaker, Tom Spencer, Christine Embleton-Hamann, 2009-07-02 A statement from the world's leading geomorphologists on the state of and potential changes to the environment Soil Carbon in Sensitive European Ecosystems Robert Jandl, Mirco Rodeghiero, Mats Olsson, 2011-10-20 Soil Carbon in Sensitive European Ecosystems From Science to Land Management is a comprehensive overview of the latest research in this field drawn together by a network of scientists from across Europe. Soil carbon assessments are crucial at present to our understanding of the dynamics of terrestrial ecosystems and our ability to assess implications for the global carbon exchange and its consequences on the future climate. This book focuses primarily on ecosystems and their soil carbon stocks. The book identifies three key sensitive ecosystems within Europe: Mediterranean Forest and Agricultural Systems, Mountains and Peatland. Contributors include those currently working for the European research programme COST Action 639 BurnOut. www.cost639.net 2006-2010. COST Action 639 emerged from a demand from policy makers in Europe for more detailed information on soil carbon dynamics. The cooperation between experts for reporting and experts for soil dynamics is the focus of the book. This book seeks to provide an up to date account on the state of the art research within this topical field.

Forest Science, 1994 Successes, Limitations, and Frontiers in Ecosystem Science Michael L. Pace, Peter M. Groffman, 2013-12-01 Research on the ecosystems has emerged in recent decades as a vital, successful and sometimes controversial approach to environmental science. Ecosystem science has addressed issues such as human alteration of biogeochemical cycles, ecological complexity and biodiversity and ecological response to climate change. As a central and integrating science, ecosystem level studies have been highly successful. This book emphasizes the idea that much of the progress in ecosystem research has been driven by the emergence of new environmental problems that could not be addressed by existing approaches. By focusing on successes, limitations and frontiers in ecosystem studies, it will be welcomed by students and scientists throughout the ecological and environmental communities.

Understanding Emerging Security Challenges Ashok Swain, 2013 This book offers an overview of emerging security challenges in the global environment in the post Cold War era. After the fall of the Berlin Wall and the subsequent shifting of international political environment, a new, broader concept of security began to gain acceptance. This concept encompassed socio-economic, environmental challenges such as resource scarcity and climate change, water sharing issues, deforestation and forest protection measures, food and health security and large population migration. The book examines the causes and consequences of these emerging security threats and retains a critical focus on evolving approaches to address these issues. The author attempts to develop a framework for sustainable security in a rapidly changing global political landscape which seeks to bring states and societies together in a way that addresses weaknesses of the evolving international system. Moreover, through a detailed analysis of the emerging security issues and their pathways, the book further argues that the evolving processes not only pose critical challenges but also provide remarkable opportunity for cooperation and collaboration among and within various stakeholders. This book will be of much interest to students of global security, war and conflict studies, peace studies and IR in general.

Dryland Management:

Economic Case Studies John A. Dixon, David E. James, Paul B. Sherman, 2013-11-05 Drylands are a sizeable part of the world's potentially arable land. They vary from the hyper arid regions of the classic deserts of Africa and Asia to the more common semi arid and sub humid areas that support extensive agricultural systems dependent on rainfall or irrigation. Following their successful and innovative work The Economics of Dryland Management the editors have assembled twenty case studies from nine countries in the continents of Africa, Asia, North America and Australia. They help to explore more fully the costs of land degradation and illustrate the economics of reclamation, rehabilitation and prevention. The cases in this book present a rich, varied and readable survey of a wide range of drylands and their resources. Originally published in 1999.
