RADIATION ONCOLOGY BILLING REVIEW JOB AID

For a radiation oncologist, freestanding cancer center or radiation oncology department to receive appropriate reimbursement, they must submit a properly coded claim to the payer. This claim must include both the correct CPT[®] and HCPCS level II code(s) for the procedure performed and the ICD-10-CM diagnosis code(s) that accurately describe the patient's condition and the reason for the service.

Coding for services is considered to be an outcome of the medical record documentation. Radiation oncology providers often charge the service as soon as it has been completed, but it is almost impossible to report a code without the final documentation. Adequate documentation means documentation from which services rendered and the amount of reimbursement received by a provider can be readily discerned and verified with reasonable certainty.

This Job Aid is not intended to replace the CPT[®] manual or the application of authoritative coding guidance; it is intended to provide the common processes and codes billed for radiation oncology services in specified courses of treatment. This will allow the physician, freestanding center or facility to review services captured to determine if charges have been omitted or billed in error.

Medical coders and clinical staff responsible for the selection of procedure codes are reminded to access authoritative coding sources to ensure there have been no changes to codes or code descriptors. Some radiation therapy procedures are only professional in nature, some are technical-only, and other services have both a professional and technical component.

When a third-party is involved, the determination of reimbursement for services is the decision of the individual insurance company based on the patient's policy and the third-party payer guidelines. No single job aid can adequately address reimbursement issues for the hundreds of insurance payers that exist. Therefore, it is essential that each payer be reviewed for their individual requirements.
