the status and function of lexicographic reference works the history of lexicography the theory of lexicography lexicographic processes lexicographic training and lexicographic institutions new metalexicographic methods electronic and especially computer assisted lexicography Theory and Practice of Specialised Online Dictionaries Pedro A. Fuertes-Olivera, Sven Tarp, 2014-06-18 This book is the first comprehensive monograph on the Function Theory of Lexicography which originated at the Aarhus School of Business Aarhus University Function Theory considers dictionaries to be tools that are constructed for assisting specific users with punctual needs in specific usage situations e.g. communicative oriented situations and cognitive oriented situations The book's main focus is on defending the independent academic status of lexicography and its corollary The process of designing compiling and updating specialised online dictionaries needs a theoretical framework that addresses general and specific aspects The former are common to all types of information tools the latter are mainly dependent on the media for which the information tool is constructed and their specific target users This book offers both aspects and moves from the highest level of abstraction to very detailed aspects of lexicographic work e.g. how to convert an originally conceived polyfunctional online dictionary into several monofunctional usage based ones The book illustrates that the theory and the methodology currently used by advocates of the Function Theory of Lexicography offers better results than other approaches and therefore makes its case for proposing the Function Theory for terminological terminographical work The Routledge Handbook of Lexicography Pedro A. Towards a Multifunctional Lexical Resource

Dennis Spohr, 2012-01-27 What are the principles according to which lexical data should be represented in order to form a lexical database that can serve as a basis for the construction of several different monofunctional dictionaries Starting from the notion of lexicographic functions as defined by Henning Bergenholtz and Sven Tarp this question is approached by analysing how current electronic dictionaries and lexical resource models attempt to satisfy the needs of different types of users in different usage situations in order to identify general requirements on the model for a lexical resource that aims to be multifunctional in the above sense Based on this analysis this book explores the use of formalisms developed in the context of the semantic web to approach both general and specific lexicographic questions in particular the representation of multi word expressions and their properties and relations In doing so this book not only addresses several topics which are of relevance to lexicographers and computational linguists alike but also supports its claims by providing a prototypical implementation of a multifunctional lexical resource using semantic web formalisms

The Oxford Handbook of Lexicography Philip Durkin, 2016 This volume provides concise authoritative accounts of the approaches and methodologies of modern lexicography and of the aims and qualities of its end products Leading scholars and professional lexicographers from all over the world and representing all the main traditions and perspectives assess the state of the art in every aspect of research and practice The book is divided into four parts reflecting the main types of lexicography Part I looks at synchronic dictionaries those for the general public monolingual dictionaries for second language learners and bilingual dictionaries Part II and III are devoted to the distinctive methodologies and concerns of the historical dictionaries and specialist dictionaries respectively while chapters in Part IV examine specific topics such as description and prescription the representation of pronunciation and the practicalities of dictionary production The book ends with a chronology of the major events in the history of lexicography It will be a valuable resource for students scholars and practitioners in the field

Using Online Dictionaries Carolin Müller-Spitzer, 2014-02-27 Until now there has been very little research into the use of online dictionaries In contrast the market for online dictionaries is increasing both for academic lexicography and for commercial lexicography with sales figures for printed reference works in continual decline This has led to a demand for reliable empirical information on how online dictionaries are actually being used and how they could be made more user friendly The volume Using Online Dictionaries makes a substantial contribution to closing this research gap It is divided into four parts The first part contains articles on fundamental issues a research review of the empirical studies on digital dictionaries which have already been carried out and a brief methodological guideline for lexicographical researchers who are interested in conducting their own empirical research The second part contains the results of two studies that focus on general questions about the use of online dictionaries It presents empirical data on contexts of dictionary use on expectations and demands regarding online dictionaries Furthermore innovative features such as the use of multimedia elements or the option of a user adaptive interface and questions of design were assessed empirically The third part of this volume comprises more specific studies of online dictionaries an eye tracking study evaluating the new web design of the dictionary portal OWID and a log file study which tries to get to the bottom of the following question Do dictionary users look up frequent words or put differently is there a connection between how often a word is looked up and how often it appears in a corpus In the last chapter of this thematic section the question of how users judge the combination of a written paraphrase and an additional illustration in illustrated online dictionaries is addressed The last part focuses on the use of monolingual dictionaries in particular the German online dictionary elexiko In this context two online questionnaire based studies were carried out The empirical studies were conducted in the form of online surveys combining questionnaires and experimental elements and in the form of laboratory studies using eye tracking technology as well as using observational methods such as log file analyses Regarding the comprehensive research framework this volume can be relevant to lexicographers metalexicographers and linguists who are interested in the use of online dictionaries and in the development and exploration of lexicographical data for the internet as well as linguists interested in empirical methods It addresses a broad expert audience by presenting an academic subject which is currently the focus of much discussion of Translation Studies and Linguistics Kirsten Malmkjaer, 2017-12-14 The Routledge Handbook of Translation Studies and Linguistics explores the interrelationships between translation studies and linguistics in six sections of state of the art chapters written by leading specialists from around the world The first part begins by addressing the relationships between translation studies and linguistics as major topics of study in themselves before focusing in individual chapters on the relationships between translation on the one hand and semantics semiotics and the sound system of language on the other Part II explores the nature of meaning and the ways in which meaning can be shared in text pairs that are related to each other as first written texts and their translations while Part III focuses on the relationships between translation and interpreting and the written and spoken word Part IV considers the users of language and situations involving more than one language and Part V addresses technological tools that can assist language users Finally Part VI presents chapters on the links between areas of applied linguistics and translation and interpreting With an introduction by the editor and an extensive bibliography this handbook is an indispensable resource for advanced students of translation studies interpreting studies and applied linguistics

Digital Papyrology II Nicola Reggiani, 2018-05-07 The ongoing digitisation of the literary papyri and related technical texts like the medical papyri is leading to new thoughts on the concept and shape of the digital critical edition of ancient documents First of all there is the need of representing any textual and paratextual feature as much as possible and of encoding them in a semantic markup that is very different from a traditional critical edition based on the mere display of information Moreover several new tools allow us to reconsider not only the linguistic dimension of the ancient texts from exploiting the potentialities of linguistic annotation to a full consideration of language variation as a key to socio cultural analysis but also the very concept of philological variation replacing the mono authorial view of an reconstructed archetype with a dynamic multitextual model closer to the fluid aspect of the textual transmission The contributors experts in the application of digital strategies to the papyrological research face these issues from their own viewpoints not without glimpses on parallel fields like Egyptology and Near Eastern studies The result is a new original and cross disciplinary overview of a key issue in the digital humanities

Languages in Action Marinela Burada, 2019-01-24 This book includes a selection of papers in linguistics presented at the 14th Conference on British and American Studies Its tripartite structure reflects the main topics around which the nineteen contributions cluster The first part Native language profiling explorations and findings displays a variety of methodological approaches aimed at highlighting syntactic morphological and lexico semantic aspects of primarily English and Romanian The papers in the second section Aspects of language change bilingualism and cross linguistic variation bring to the fore some of the topical issues falling within the ambit of language contact such as mixed languages bilingualism and code switching as well as contrastive investigations of language structure The research strand in the final part Meaning and communication within and across cultures relates to lexico pragmatic inquiries into the construction of meaning focusing on the language beyond language as well as on the extent to which the lexical and pragmatic repertoires of various languages can be made to overlap 13th Conference on British and American Studies Marinela Burada, 2017-03-07 This volume brings together a selection of papers in linguistics presented at the 13th edition of the Conference on British and American Studies Structured into three chapters the studies included here are illustrative for the different perspectives methodologies and research traditions in the investigation of language related phenomena The first chapter Language Change and Cross Linguistic Analysis is mainly concerned with the external and internal catalysts for language change and with a number of morphosyntactic and semantic particularities of Romanian set in contrast with other languages Aspects related to first or second language learning and language as an instrument of thought form the content of the second chapter Language Acquisition Teaching and Processing The focus of the final chapter Pragmatics Translation and the Negotiation of Meaning is language as an instrument of power and self communication
