Critical Education Sociomaterial Practice Environmental:

Critical Education and Sociomaterial Practice Marcia McKenzie, Andrew Bieler, 2016 Critical Education and Sociomaterial Practice presents a situated approach to learning that suggests the need for more explicit attention to sociomaterial practice in critical education. Specifically, it explores social place and narrative dimensions of practical experience as they unfold in schools, in place-based learning and teacher education contexts. Such an orientation to practice both links social and material conditions, social relations, other species, physical context, objects to human consciousness and learning, and considers the relationship between such learning and broader cultural change. The core of the book is an examination of critical situated learning undertaken through three separate empirical studies, each of which we use to elaborate a particular domain or dimension of practical experience. In turning to the sociomaterial contexts of learning, the book also underscores how social and environmental issues are necessarily linked, such as in the production of food deserts in cities or in the pollution of the drinking water in Indigenous communities through oil development. More social movements globally are connecting the dots between sexism, heteronormativity, racism, colonization, White privilege, globalization, poverty, and climate justice, including with issues of land, territory, and sovereignty, water, food, energy, and treatment and extinction of other species. As a result, categorizing some concerns as social justice or critical issues and others as environmental becomes increasingly untenable. The book thus suggests that more integrative and productive forms of critical education are needed to respond to these complex and pressing socio-ecological conditions.

New Materialisms and Environmental Education David A. G. Clarke, Jamie McPhie, 2023-07-24 New materialisms refers to a broad contemporary and significant movement of thought across the social sciences and cultural studies which attempts to return to renew or create alternative philosophies of matter. Such philosophies spring from multiple sources but are in general an attempt to bring the indissolubility of the social and environmental more forcefully into our analytical frames and modes of inquiry and tackle a perceived over-reliance on discourse and language in the so-called post-modern era of philosophy and social science. This movement in thought is underlaid by and meets up with the climate and biodiversity crises and the nature of the human condition and modes of learning or becoming within the field of environmental education. This volume brings together academics working at differing intersections of environmental education and new materialisms, highlighting tensions, knots, and lines of flight across and for research practice and theory. As such, this collection draws on multiple interpretations and streams of thought within new materialisms and demonstrates their significance for those engaging with environmental education policy practice and research. This book was originally published as a special issue of the journal Environmental Education Research.

Practising Immanence David A. G. Clarke, 2023-11-28 Practising Immanence: Living with Theory and Environmental Education makes creative contributions to both qualitative inquiry and environmental education by exploring how each of these ideas seep and fuse into one another, creating a space where methodology becomes pedagogy and where each of these is already always environmental indivisible with life Clarke's energising and innovative approach offers a challenge to conventional research practices and shows ways in which inquiry can be done differently Drawing on new materialisms affect theory and the practical philosophy of Gilles Deleuze and Felix Guattari the book details the PhD journey of the author merging stories and theory and stories of theory in the production of eight haecceities a philosophical concept which prioritises the thisness of a thing or event This move allows a novel methodological approach whereby the haecceities act as sites of variation on the events of the book the self as unstable and posthuman the environment as everything immanent rather than as an overly romantic or a green version of nature and the tensions that these moves create for ethical orientations in education inquiry and life in the Anthropocene Practising Immanence brings theory to life through a diffractively critical style and a unique approach to environmental pedagogic practice This radical and vitalising book will be of interest to those inspired to explore environmental problems and inquiry with each other and to those drawn to creative relational narrative embodied and post qualitative approaches to research

Ethical Literacies and Education for Sustainable Development Olof Franck,Christina Osbeck,2017-05-06 This book explores the ethical dimensions surrounding the development of education for sustainable development within schools and examines these issues through the lens of ethical literacy The book argues that teaching children to engage with nature is crucial if they are to develop a true understanding of sustainability and climate issues and claims that sustainability education is much more successful when pupils are treated as moral agents rather than being passive subjects of testing and assessment The collection brings together a range of fresh and creative perspectives on how issues around ethical literacies can be elaborated and expanded with regard to democratic sustainability education The use of children's books in teaching about sustainability is carefully explored as are the ethical and aesthetic dimensions of environmental education Including an afterword by Arjen Wals Professor of Transformative Learning for Socio Ecological Sustainability the book will be of great interest to students and researchers in the field of sustainability education

Researching Global Education Policy D. Brent Edwards Jr.,Antoni Verger,Marcia McKenzie,Keita Takayama,2024-07-30 The movement of policy is a core feature of contemporary education reform Many different concepts including policy transfer borrowing and lending travelling diffusion and mobility have been deployed to study how and why policy moves across jurisdictions scales of governance policy sectors or organisations However the underlying theoretical perspectives and the foundational assumptions of different approaches to policy movement remain insufficiently discussed To address this gap this book places front and center questions of theory ontology epistemology and method related to policy movement It explores a wide diversity of approaches to help understand the policy movement phenomena providing a useful guide on global studies in education as well as insights into the future of this dynamic area of work

Researching Early Childhood Education for Sustainability Sue Elliott,Eva Årlemalm-Hagsér,Julie Davis,2020-04-08 This book captures the now burgeoning research field of early childhood education for sustainability ECEfS and comprises insights from an ever widening and diverse pool of researchers who are promoting engaging and explaining the latest ECEfS research in the light of local national and United Nations global policy directives With the increasing urgency of global climate disruptions resource depletions and biodiversity losses alongside greater human dislocation the international scope of research and theory in this book provides a comprehensive guide to the role of sustainability in early childhood education at a time when it is needed more than ever Elliott Årlemalm Hagsér and Davis have brought together a collection of studies that offer new insights and approaches to ECEfS which challenge dominant narratives surrounding early childhood education and sustainability including topics such as how diverse worldviews and cultures challenge perceptions of sustainability how bold national early education policies and urgent shifts in teacher education are imperative for driving transformative practices and how ECEfS curriculum and pedagogy can be incorporated successfully into early years settings This book will both inspire researchers and more deeply enable early years educators to practise sustainability with children and so will be of great interest to scholars lecturers and researchers as well as undergraduate and postgraduate students across the increasingly intersecting fields of sustainability and early childhood education

What is critical practice what is critique And what do these ideas have to do with higher education This book argues that engaging in critical practice is fundamental to meaningful teaching learning and research Critical practice is key to understanding societies technologies and the power relations that pervade our practice Critical approaches are vital for responding meaningfully to some of the knotty questions that we face in higher education And yet there is a need to re examine critical theorising in contemporary times to address the limitations of current conceptions of criticality where critique is at risk of becoming stale redundant even harmful International in scope this book engages theory and empirical data from recent research to offer new ways of thinking and doing critical practice Case studies are drawn from teachers and academics working in the UK Australia and America across a breadth of disciplines and learning environments Specifically the book proposes a move towards a relational critical practice After many years of attention that has been paid to cognitive notions of critical thinking skills and dispositions assumed to take place within the boundaries of rational individual minds this book takes us beyond thinking about criticality as an individualised activity Elaborating a critical practice that considers the affective embodied and relational nature of criticality this text will explore how we might look more closely at the entanglement of ideas and practice of mind and body of thinking feeling and doing In doing so this book argues for a celebration of critique and for the value of a relational critical practice in higher education Critical Qualitative Health Research Kay Aranda,2020-01-21 Critical Qualitative Health Research seeks to deepen understandings of the philosophies politics and practices shaping contemporary qualitative health related research This accessible lively controversial introduction draws on current empirical examples and critical discussion to show how qualitative research undertaken in neoliberal healthcare contexts emerges and the complex issues qualitative researchers confront This book provides readers with a critical interrogative discussion of the histories and the legacies of qualitative research as well as of the more recent calls for renewed criticality in research to respond to global health concerns Contributions further showcase a range of contemporary work engaging with these issues and the complex encounters with philosophies politics and practices this involves from seeking explicit engagements with posthuman ideas or detailed explorations of deeply engaged humanist approaches to critical discussions of the politics and practices of emerging novel digital and creative methods This book offers postgraduate researchers health researchers and students alike opportunities to engage more deeply with the emergent complex and messy terrain of qualitative health related research

Inclusive Online and Distance Education for Learners with Dis/abilities Mary F. Rice,Michael Dunn,2023-07-24 The term Inclusive Online Education has generated great interest within and across educational levels and contexts yet practical applications of it remain elusive in many institutional settings Chapters in this book highlight define and interrogate definitions of inclusion The research studies reported here focus on moving the conversation about inclusive online education away from individual accommodations for which students must qualify to models where learning experiences are designed for the success of all students and teachers both technically and relationally While some authors do mention the need to know and understand the Universal Design for Learning UDL the authors in these chapters go beyond UDL to include understandings about historical challenges with inclusive education emerging understandings about designing strong online instruction and how placed based thinking and social settings provide resources from which to draw in creating online learning environments and experiences that are not only humanized but humane This book highlights research focused on moving the conversation about inclusion away from individual accommodations for which students must qualify to models where learning experiences are designed to address historical inequities and promote success for all students and teachers Collectively the chapters underscore the need to choose materials design assessments plan instruction and engage with students in accordance with relational commitments to equity Inclusive Online and Distance Education for Learners with Dis

Critical Built Heritage Practice and Conservation Johnathan Djabarouti,2024-01-23 Critical Built Heritage Practice and Conservation Evolving Perspectives supports an alternative point of departure for engaging with the historic built environment by critically questioning the legitimacy of dominant conservation concepts and methods that are often taken for granted within building conservation architecture and adaptive reuse The meaning of heritage is changing From pastness to presentness from preservation to participation and from tangible to intangible heritage is increasingly understood as a dynamic social and intangible process across many disciplines Consequently the role and remit of the built heritage practitioner and in particular the architectural conservationist is becoming progressively complex and in need of a critical gaze Is restoration really a falsehood from beginning to end Should the condition of existing materials determine the conservation method Is authenticity really an inherent quality within old buildings By engaging with a critical interpretation of heritage this book makes space for practitioners to consider the evolution of their own role within a rapidly changing context of built heritage practice Reinforced by a shift in emphasis from materials to meanings a socio material outlook is proposed which champions an enhanced focus on intangible heritage within the built heritage sector whilst still acknowledging the physical condition of old buildings is a priority for many stakeholders This book has been written with practitioners students and educators of architectural conservation in mind although will also be of relevance to the broader built heritage industry as well as academics researchers and heritage students with a passion for contemporary dialogues in heritage studies
