The Centennial of the Massachusetts Constitution Alexander Hamilton Bullock, 2015-07-12 Excerpt from The Centennial of the Massachusetts Constitution Prepared at the Request of the President of the American Antiquarian Society and Read at the Semi Annual Meeting of the Society in Boston April 27 1881 The Colony of Massachusetts had hardly secured a firm foothold here as a permanent settlement exercising the functions of government when the colonists began to make a demand for a formula of securities or liberties the equivalent of which is nearly expressed by our term Constitution The Englishman removed to a home in Massachusetts Bay passed at once under the elation and expansion of a conscious freeman The records of that time reveal to us as clearly as any history can disclose the consciousness of a generation of men two centuries and a half after their existence that the freshly arrived immigrant felt the traditional restraints of his European life falling from him and was consciously invested with new dignity and hope with new resolve and power Within four years after the coming of Winthrop the settlers became impatient that their liberties should be registered in clearly defined form and ordinance This impatience manifested itself as early as 1634 in palpable proceedings which aimed at having their rights reduced to the letter and form which should limit even the magistrates who had their highest confidence About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
