of attention invention and experimentation Facing the Unexpected Ronald W. Perry, Michael K. Lindell, Kathleen J. Tierney, 2001-11-06 Facing the Unexpected presents the wealth of information derived from disasters around the world over the past 25 years. The authors explore how these findings can improve disaster programs, identify remaining research needs, and discuss disaster within the broader context of sustainable development. How do different people think about disaster? Are we more likely to panic or to respond with altruism? Why are 110 people killed in a ValuJet crash considered disaster victims while the 50,000 killed annually in traffic accidents in the U.S. are not? At the crossroads of social, cultural, and economic factors, this book examines these and other compelling questions. The authors review the influences that shape the U.S. governmental system for disaster planning and response, the effectiveness of local emergency agencies, and the level of professionalism in the field. They also compare technological versus natural disaster and examine the impact of technology on disaster programs Facing Hazards and Disasters National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life

Studies, Committee on Disaster Research in the Social Sciences: Future Challenges and Opportunities, 2006-08-10 Social science research conducted since the late 1970s has contributed greatly to society's ability to mitigate and adapt to natural, technological, and willful disasters. However, as evidenced by Hurricane Katrina, the Indian Ocean tsunami, the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks on the United States, and other recent events, hazards and disaster research and its application could be improved greatly. In particular, more studies should be pursued that compare how the characteristics of different types of events, including predictability, forewarning, magnitude, and duration of impact, affect societal vulnerability and response. This book includes more than thirty recommendations for the hazards and disaster community Resources in Education, 1984
