Housing Economics Geoffrey Meen, Kenneth Gibb, Chris Leishman, Christian Nygaard, 2016-04-29 The world has still to emerge fully from the housing triggered Global Financial Crisis but housing crises are not new. The history of housing shows long-run social progress littered with major disasters; nevertheless, the progress is often forgotten whilst the difficulties hit the headlines. Housing Economics provides a long-term economic perspective on macro and urban housing issues from the Victorian era onwards. A historical perspective sheds light on modern problems and the constraints on what can be achieved; it concentrates on the key policy issues of housing supply, affordability, tenure, the distribution of migrant communities, mortgage markets and household mobility. Local case studies are interwoven with city-wide aggregate analysis. Three sets of issues are addressed: the underlying reasons for the initial establishment of residential neighbourhoods; the processes that generate growth, decline and patterns of integration, segregation and the impact of historical development on current problems and the implications for policy.

Kinship in Europe David Warren Sabean, Simon Teuscher, Jon Mathieu, 2007 Since the publication of Philippe Ariès's book Centuries of Childhood there has been great interest among historians in the history of the family and the household. The essays in this text explore two major transitions in kinship patterns: at the end of the Middle Ages and at the end of the 18th century.
