a surveyor He began buying tracts of land and by the time he was eighteen he had amassed close to two thousand acres He never went to sea though because his half brother was dying of tuberculosis and he wanted to cure him 4 Washington s experience with the sea left him permanently biased against it He never trusted the sea and he preferred the saddle of a horse to the deck of a ship On the Maximum Intensity of Hurricanes B. The Science Behind Hurricane Horrors Louise Spilsbury,2022-08-01 Earth it s a disaster zone For thousands of years Earth has been battered by horrific hurricanes that rage across its surface wreaking devastation as they move But what causes these awesome forces of nature and where in the world are they most likely to occur Discover the science behind hurricane horrors the world s worst ever hurricane disasters and the technology that scientists are using to help prevent devastating hurricanes of the future In the Hurricane's Eye Raymond VERNON,Raymond Vernon,2009-06-30 The world s multinational enterprises face a spell of rough weather political economist Ray Vernon argues not only from the host countries in which they have established their subsidiaries but also from their home countries Such enterprises a few thousand in number including Microsoft Toyota IBM Siemens Samsung and others now generate about half of the world s industrial output and half of the world s foreign trade so any change in the relatively benign climate in which they have operated over the past decade will create serious tensions in international economic relations The warnings of such a change are already here In the United States interests such as labor are increasingly hostile to what they see as the costs and uncertainties of an open economy In Europe those who want to preserve the social safety net and those who feel that the net must be dismantled are increasingly at odds In Japan the talk of hollowing out takes on a new urgency as the country's lifetime employment practices are threatened and as public and private institutions are subjected to unaccustomed stress The tendency of multinationals in different countries to find common cause in open markets strong patents and trademarks and international technical standards has been viewed as a loss of national sovereignty and a weakening of the nation state system producing hostile reactions in home countries The challenge for policy makers Vernon argues is to bridge the quite different regimes of the multinational enterprise and the nation state Both have a major role to play and yet must make basic changes in their practices and policies to accommodate each other
