

Computer Network

1) What is a Link?

A link refers to the connectivity between two devices. It includes the type of cables and protocols used for one device to be able to communicate with the other.

2) What are the layers of the OSI reference model?

There are 7 OSI layers: 1) Physical Layer, 2) Data Link Layer, 3) Network Layer, 4) Transport Layer, 5) Session Layer, 6) Presentation Layer, and 7) Application Layer.

3) What is the backbone network?

A backbone network is a centralized infrastructure that is designed to distribute different types and data on various networks. It also handles the management of bandwidth and multiple channels.

4) What is a LAN?

LAN stands for Local Area Network. It refers to the connection between computers and other network devices that are located within a small physical location.

5) What is a node?

A node refers to a point or point where a connection takes place. It can be a computer or device that is part of a network. Two or more nodes are needed to form a network connection.

6) What are routers?

Routers can connect two or more network segments. These are intelligent network devices that use information to set routing tables, such as paths, hops, and bandwidths. With this info, they can determine the best path for data transfer. Routers operate at the OSI Network Layer.

7) What is a point-to-point link?

It refers to a direct connection between two computers on a network. A point-to-point connection does not need any other network devices other than connecting a cable to the NIC cards of both computers.

8) What is anonymous FTP?

Anonymous FTP is a way of granting user access to files on public servers. Users that are allowed access to data on these servers do not need to identify themselves, but instead, log in as an anonymous guest.

9) What is a subnet mask?

A subnet mask is combined with an IP address to identify each part: the extended network address and the host address. Like a IP address, a subnet mask is made up of 32 bits.

10) What is the maximum length allowed for a UTP cable?

A single segment of UTP cable has an allowable length of 60 to 100 meters. This limitation can be overcome by using repeaters and extenders.

11) What is data encapsulation?

Data encapsulation is the process of breaking down information into smaller, manageable chunks before it is transmitted across the network. In this process, the source and destination addresses are attached to the headers, along with parity checks.

12) Describe Network Topology

Network Topology refers to the layout of a computer network. It shows how devices and cables are physically laid out, as well as how they connect.

13) What is a VPN?

VPN means Virtual Private Network, a technology that allows a secure tunnel to be created across a network, such as the Internet. For example, VPNs allow you to establish a secure dial-up connection to a remote server.

14) Briefly describe NAT

NAT is Network Address Translation. This is a protocol that provides a way for multiple computers on a private network to share a single connection to the Internet.

15) What is the job of the Network Layer under the OSI reference model?

The Network layer is responsible for data routing, packet structuring, and control of network congestion. Routers operate under this layer.

16) How does a network topology affect your decision to set a network?

Network topology dictates what media you must use to interconnect devices. It also serves as a basis on what materials, connections, and terminations that is applicable for the setup.

17) What is RIP?

RIP, short for Routing Information Protocol is used by routers to send data from one network to another. It efficiently manages routing data by broadcasting its routing table to all other routers within the network. It determines the network distance in units of hops.

18) What are the different ways of securing a computer network?

There are several ways to do this. Install a reliable and updated anti-virus programs on all computers. Make sure firewalls are setup and configured correctly. User authentication will also help a lot. All these combined would make a highly secured network.

19) What is NIC?

NIC is short for Network Interface Card. This is a peripheral card that is attached to a PC in order to connect to a network. Every NIC has its own MAC address that identifies the PC on the network.

20) What is WAN?

WAN stands for Wide Area Network. It is an interconnection of computers and devices that are geographically dispersed. It connects networks that are located in different regions and countries.

21) What is the importance of the OSI Physical Layer?

The physical layer does the conversion from data bits to the electrical signal, and vice versa. This is where network devices and cable types are considered and setup.
