Woodward,2013-12-19 Highly praised for its broad practical coverage the second edition of this popular text incorporated the major statistical models and issues relevant to epidemiological studies Epidemiology Study Design and Data Analysis Third Edition continues to focus on the quantitative aspects of epidemiological research Updated and expanded this edition shows students how statistical principles and techniques can help solve epidemiological problems New to the Third Edition New chapter on risk scores and clinical decision rules New chapter on computer intensive methods including the bootstrap permutation tests and missing value imputation New sections on binomial regression models competing risk information criteria propensity scoring and splines Many more exercises and examples using both Stata and SAS More than 60 new figures After introducing study design and reviewing all the standard methods this self contained book takes students through analytical methods for both general and specific epidemiological study designs including cohort case control and intervention studies In addition to classical methods it now covers modern methods that exploit the enormous power of contemporary computers The book also addresses the problem of determining the appropriate size for a study discusses statistical modeling in epidemiology covers methods for comparing and summarizing the evidence from several studies and explains how to use statistical models in risk forecasting and assessing new biomarkers The author illustrates the techniques with numerous real world examples and interprets results in a practical way He also includes an extensive list of references for further reading along with exercises to reinforce understanding Web Resource A wealth of supporting material can be downloaded from the book s CRC Press web page including Real life data sets used in the text SAS and Stata programs used for examples in the text SAS and Stata programs for special techniques covered Sample size spreadsheet Explanatory Item Response Models Paul de Boeck,Mark Wilson,2013-03-09 This edited volume gives a new and integrated introduction to item response models predominantly used in measurement applications in psychology education and other social science areas from the viewpoint of the statistical theory of generalized linear and nonlinear mixed models Moreover this new framework aHow the domain of item response models to be coordinated and broadened to emphasize their explanatory uses beyond their standard descriptive uses The basic explanatory principle is that item responses can be modeled as a function of predictors of various kinds The predictors can be characteristics of items of persons and of combinations of persons and items they can be observed or latent of either items or persons and they can be latent continuous or latent categorical Thus a broad range of models can be generated including a wide range of extant item response models as well as some new ones Within this range models with explanatory predictors are given special attention but we also discuss descriptive models Note that the item responses that we are referring to are not just the traditional test data but are broadly conceived as categorical data from a repeated observations design Hence data from studies with repeated observations experimental designs or with longitudinal designs may also be modeled The intended audience for this volume is rather broad
