Committee on the Judiciary, 2009 The Broadband Problem Charles H. Ferguson, 2004-04-21 As the Internet revolution continues to unfold and transform telecommunications pressure is building for faster less expensive and more widely accessible broadband service Such a development would facilitate improved and less expensive traditional applications such as voice telephony and web browsing It would also enable new and useful applications such as Internet based television videoconferencing and software distribution Broadband has great potential to improve efficiency and productivity even to improve national security in some cases Broadband service and affordability however have consistently lagged well behind demand and progress in information technology with damaging results The Internet revolution remains incomplete and threatens to stagnate if the situation continues In The Broadband Problem economist and technology entrepreneur Charles H Ferguson explains the causes and ramifications of this damaging bottleneck and he offers suggestions on improving the current state of affairs He asserts that current telecommunications law and policy have not provided sufficient levels of new entry competition and innovation in the local telecom market The continuing dominance of ILECs incumbent local exchange carriers in that market impedes the healthy and much needed development of an efficient broadband market The result of these policy and market failures is inadequate technological progress innovation and productivity in advanced Internet services and telecommunication services generally The broadband problem is holding us back and thus must be addressed and solved With this important volume Charles Ferguson has contributed mightily to that mission

Switching Channels Richard E CAVES, Richard E Caves, Karen Guo, 2009-06-30 Media critics invariably disparage the quality of programming produced by the U S television industry But why the industry produces what it does is a question largely unasked It is this question at the crux of American popular culture that Switching Channels explores

The Ownership of the News Great Britain: Parliament: House of Lords: Select Committee on Communications, 2008 This report examines the impact that media ownership can have on the news and the effect of consolidation on the newspaper television and radio industries The newspaper industry is facing severe problems as readership levels fall young people turn to other sources of news and advertising moves to the internet Newspaper companies are having to make savings and this is having a particular impact on investment in news gathering and investigative journalism In television news the same trends are evident Most news programmes have smaller audiences than they had ten years ago younger people in particular are watching less television news commercial television channels are losing advertising revenue to the internet New media in particular the internet are having a major impact on the way news is produced and consumed but the traditional forms of news are likely to be the most popular sources of news for the foreseeable future The proliferation of news sources has not been matched by a corresponding expansion in professional and investigative journalism Owners can and do influence the news in a variety of ways They are in a position to have significant political impact The consolidation of media ownership adds to the risk of disproportionate influence The Committee recommends reform of the public interest test criteria for newspaper mergers and also believes that reforming cross media ownership restrictions on regional and local newspaper and radio mergers is necessary The Committee does not consider changes in ownership regulation and competition law to be enough if the aim is to ensure a range of voices and high quality news The public service broadcasting system in the United Kingdom provides an invaluable news service for the citizen and it is crucial that the contribution of all the public service broadcasters is maintained
