Subcommittee on Communications and Technology, 2011 Building Vibrant Communities Chicago Policy Research Team, 2016-05-19 This report explores the meaning of vibrancy in the context of the Chicago Housing Authority's neighborhood transformation efforts Over the course of five months the Chicago Policy Research Team at the University of Chicago has examined vibrancy through five different lenses the built environment civic society services and amenities the economy and housing policy From these perspectives we have asked questions such as how important is access to technology for educational success what role do religious spaces play in creating social networks and how can the design of a park foster a greater sense of community Our findings are aimed at informing the agency and its partners on how to cultivate vibrancy in Chicago's diverse neighborhoods not just by achieving specific metrics but also by affording Chicago residents a voice and sense of belonging Access to Broadband Networks Angele A. Gilroy, 2011-08 As congressional policymakers continue to debate telecom reform a major point of contention is the question of whether action is needed to ensure unfettered access to the Internet The move to place restrictions on the owners of the networks that compose and provide access to the Internet to ensure equal access and non discriminatory treatment is referred to as net neutrality A major focus in the debate is concern over whether it is necessary for policymakers to take steps to ensure access to the Internet for content services and applications providers as well as consumers what these steps should be Contents of this report Intro FCC Activity Industry Initiatives Network Mgmt The Policy Debate Congress Activity A print on demand report Piracy of Live Sports Broadcasting Over the Internet United States. Internet remains the most reliable mechanism for fostering innovation and creating new wealth The Internet's remarkable growth has been fueled by innovation In this pathbreaking book Barbara van Schewick argues that this explosion of innovation is not an accident but a consequence of the Internet's architecture a consequence of technical choices regarding the Internet's inner structure that were made early in its history The Internet's original architecture was based on four design principles modularity layering and two versions of the celebrated but often misunderstood end to end arguments But today the Internet's architecture is changing in ways that deviate from the Internet's original design principles removing the features that have fostered innovation and threatening the Internet's ability to spur economic growth to improve democratic discourse and to provide a decentralized environment for social and cultural interaction in which anyone can participate If no one intervenes network providers interests will drive networks further away from the original design principles If the Internet's value for society is to be preserved van Schewick argues policymakers will have to intervene and protect the features that were at the core of the Internet's success
