Daewoo Scan 1:

Scanning Probe Lithography Hyongsok T. Soh, Kathryn Wilder Guarini, Calvin F. Quate, 2013-03-14 Scanning Probe Lithography SPL describes recent advances in the field of scanning probe lithography a high resolution patterning technique that uses a sharp tip in close proximity to a sample to pattern nanometer scale features on the sample SPL is capable of patterning sub 30nm features with nanometer scale alignment registration It is a relatively simple inexpensive reliable method for patterning nanometer scale features on various substrates It has potential applications for nanometer scale research for maskless semiconductor lithography and for photomask patterning The authors of this book have been key players in this exciting new field Calvin Quate has been involved since the beginning in the early 1980s and leads the research time that is regarded as the foremost group in this field Hyongsok Tom Soh and Kathryn Wilder Guarini have been the members of this group who in the last few years have brought about remarkable series of advances in SPM lithography Some of these advances have been in the control of the tip which has allowed the scanning speed to be increased from micrometers per second to millimeters per second Both non contact and in contact writing have been demonstrated as has controlled writing of sub 100 nm lines over large steps on the substrate surface The engineering of a custom designed MOSFET built into each microcantilever for individual current control is another notable achievement Micromachined arrays of probes each with individual control have been demonstrated One of the most intriguing new aspects is the use of directly grown carbon nanotubes as robust high resolution emitters In this book the authors concisely and authoritatively describe the historical context the relevant inventions and the prospects for eventual manufacturing use of this exciting new technology
