

THE SKIN

2nd Edition

- The skin (or integument) is the largest organ in the body and has many functions, including protection, sensation, thermoregulation, and some metabolic processes • Different areas of the body have different functional characteristics, such as thickness, color, and the presence of epidermal appendages (hair, glands, and nails)
- Skin is formed by two layers: the epidermis and the dermis
- Thick skin is classified as thick, but skin of the palms and soles of the feet is classified as thick • In thick skin, the epidermis is thickened, but not the dermis • Skin thickness ranges from 0.5 mm to over 5 mm

- Stratum corneum
  - Outermost "bony layer" of thin squamous cells that are continuously shed and replaced on the surface • The cytoskeleton of these cells is replaced by keratinizing keratin • Functions as a barrier to water loss and threats from the environment
- Stratum lucidum
  - "Clear layer" that is especially prominent in thick skin • Cell nuclei are generally absent, and the cells are filled with a soft gel-like substance called elastin, which eventually becomes keratin
- Stratum granulosum
  - "Granular layer" where keratinization begins • Cell nuclei are either absent or degenerate • This layer may be absent in thin skin
- Stratum spinosum
  - "Spiny layer" where protein synthesis occurs for keratin production
  - This layer accounts for most of the thickness of the epidermis
- Stratum basale
  - Single "base layer" of columnar cells where cell division occurs • Cells migrate from here to the upper layers and are eventually shed • Melanocytes, which are cells that produce the pigment melanin, are found in this layer • Difference in skin color are due to the amount of melanin produced, not the number of melanocytes
- Stratum germinativum
  - "Growth layer" referring to the stratum spinosum and stratum basale together

- Epidermis
  - Outer, thin layer of the skin • Consists of layers of stratified squamous epithelium
  - Lacks blood vessels and has few nerve endings • Contains ridges on the body with thickened areas on the palms and soles, and thinnest on the eyelids

- Dermis
  - Inner, thicker layer beneath the epidermis • Composed mostly of collagen fibers, with some elastic fibers and reticular fibers
  - Contains specialized structures such as hair follicles, sweat and sebaceous glands, blood vessels, nerves, and lymphatic vessels

- Protein compounds
  - Keratin: protein found in dead skin that responds to deep pressure
  - Elastin: found in the folds and feet

- Subcutaneous layer (Hypodermis)
  - Connective tissue layer below the dermis containing a large amount of fat
  - Contains fat-regulating vessels and nerves to the overlying skin

- Sweat glands
  - Membranous folded ducts carrying the skin and subcutaneous layer from underlying tissues and other structures

- Stratum germinativum
  - Growth layer where skin cells divide and produce new cells

- Hair bulb
  - Base of the hair that supplies the hair with nutrients

- Hair shaft
  - The part of the hair that extends above the skin surface

- Hair root sheath
  - The part of the hair that is embedded in the skin

- Hair root canal
  - The duct through which the hair grows

- Hair root sheath
  - The part of the hair that is embedded in the skin
