The Resettlement of Sex Offenders after Custody David Thompson, Terry Thomas, 2017-07-14 Circles of Support and Accountability is a voluntary initiative that assists people with convictions for sexual offences to resettle in the community People leaving prison with such convictions often have difficulties in resettling They carry the burden of the conviction itself which may be both stigmatising and isolating and they are the subject of sex offender register requirements parole and other supervisory conditions Circles of Support and Accountability in the UK started over ten years ago and have slowly spread across the country They work closely with the police and probation services but rely entirely on volunteers prepared to give up their time to work with people often otherwise shunned by communities Circles offer support to the person concerned but also hold them accountable for their future behaviour They aim to ensure there are no more victims This book is based on original research and provides a close up picture of how these Circles of Support and Accountability work in practice It brings together for the first time the voices of all the participants from the offenders and the volunteers through to the Coordinators who link the volunteers to the professionals in the form of the police and probation services The research was commissioned by Circles UK and funded by the Wates Foundation and the University of Leeds School of Law

Local, Traditional and Indigenous Food Systems in the 21st Century to Combat Obesity, Undernutrition and Climate Change, 2nd edition Rebecca Kanter, Sofia Boza, Gina

Kennedy,2023-07-31 Traditional and indigenous food systems have existed for centuries and were in balance with local food supplies globally However between the mid 20th and early 21st century the green revolution dramatically altered food production which in turn affected the inclusivity of traditional production systems within food systems and subsequently traditional dietary intakes This change was accompanied by lifestyle changes and spurred a global nutrition transition Today the world faces a global syndemic of obesity undernutrition and climate change A new call to action to create food systems that nourish people and sustain the planet is needed Traditional and indigenous food systems have long been recognized as systems that can both support good human nutrition as well as maintain a balance with nature There is an underutilized knowledge base around traditional and indigenous food systems This includes the knowledge of nutritious species traditional culinary preparations and cultural practices Greater agricultural production of underutilized species can result in more sustainable agricultural and food systems which can also help improve livelihoods and food security Traditional and indigenous cultural practices with respect to both land and water management as well as culinary practices contribute to both sustainable food production and consumption These practices require a greater evidence base in order to be incorporated into public health nutrition initiatives related to improving dietary quality such as food based dietary guidelines for example An increased focus on the importance of local traditional and indigenous food systems and nutrition could therefore help countries to improve human nutrition and ideally help mitigate the global syndemic of obesity undernutrition and climate change This Research Topic will focus on documenting diverse local food systems and promoting elements within them that can help improve nutrition and health both human and planetary in various ways including the livelihood development of knowledge holders Climate Change Adaptation Manual Andrea Prutsch,Torsten Grothmann,Sabine McCallum,Inke Schauser,Rob Swart,2014-02-24 Due to the lack of success in climate change mitigation efforts the importance of adaptation is becoming more and more apparent and is now one of the main imperatives of international research and action However research on adaptation is mostly not directly applicable to adaptation policy or practice leaving a gap between scientific results and practical advice for decision makers and planners This book seeks to address this problem and bridge the gap and should provide readers with practical and applicable information on climate change adaptation Following an introduction the book is organised into four main sections each reflecting an essential component in the adaptation process Climate change adaptation is an emerging subject area and has gained increased political and academic attention within the last decade Whereas most books in the field focus on adaptation in developing countries this volume provides an examination of predominantly European policy and offers inter disciplinary insight into cutting edge knowledge and lessons learnt in a relatively new field of implementation Governance of Genetic Resources Catherine Rhodes,2013-11-29 This timely study will be of interest to students and academics concerned with the management of genetic resources and its connection to issues such as intellectual property rights biodiversity conservation and food security
