The CXCR4 Ligand/Receptor Family and the DPP4 Protease in High-Risk Cardiovascular Patients Heidi

Noels, Jürgen Bernhagen, 2016-06-27 Cardiovascular disease CVD is the most common cause of morbidity and mortality worldwide putting a major burden on life quality and social health care systems Type 2 diabetes mellitus T2DM and chronic kidney disease CKD have been identified as important risk factors for CVD severely increasing the risk on e.g. myocardial infarction and cardiovascular complications constitute the main cause of death in patients presenting with T2DM CKD or a combination of both As these pathologies are expected to rise alarmingly in the next decades a better understanding of molecular and cellular mechanisms contributing to T2DM CKD and CVD is required to improve prevention and treatment of these diseases Furthermore insight into the interplay between these pathologies and identification of molecular players interconnecting these comorbidities is of tremendous importance for optimal health management in the future This Research Topic will focus on the chemokine receptor CXCR4 and its ligands CXCL12 SDF 1a and macrophage migration inhibitory factor MIF in the context of CVD and its link with T2DM and CKD as well as address dipeptidyl peptidase 4 DPP4 as an important protease destabilizing CXCL12 Chemokines and their receptors are important mediators of cell mobilization recruitment and arrest and also more broadly induce cell activation by triggering various intracellular signalling tracks They control homeostatic conditions but are also critically involved in inflammatory and pathological processes Genome wide association studies revealed single nucleotide polymorphisms connecting CXCL12 as well as MIF with CVD and a role for both chemokines in T2DM and CKD has also been reported In this review collection current knowledge on molecular aspects of the CXCR4 ligand receptor family and associated signalling pathways will be discussed The physiological roles of CXCR4 CXCL12 MIF and DPP4 will be summarized and recent findings on their function in pathological conditions of CVD T2DM and CKD will be highlighted This is combined with an extensive introduction providing insight into the pathologies of CVD T2DM and CKD discussing clinical features and common pathological aspects of these comorbidities on cellular and molecular level Also an overview of available animal models to study these diseases will be provided This way this Research Topic summarizes latest knowledge on this crucial molecular axis and its relationship with cardiovascular pathologies for both specialists and interested non specialists and aims to stimulate further initiatives to unravel the mechanistic involvement of the CXCR4 ligand receptor family in these morbidities potentially paving the way for new therapeutical initiatives in the future

Metastable Dynamics of Neural Ensembles Emili Balaguer-Ballester, Ruben Moreno-Bote, Gustavo Deco, Daniel Durstewitz, 2018-03-19

A classical view of neural computation is that it can be characterized in terms of convergence to attractor states or sequential transitions among states in a noisy background After over three decades is this still a valid model of how brain dynamics implements cognition This book provides a comprehensive collection of recent theoretical and experimental contributions addressing the question of stable versus transient neural population dynamics from complementary angles These studies showcase recent efforts for designing a framework that encompasses the multiple facets of metastability in neural responses one of the most exciting topics currently in systems and computational neuroscience

History of Chemoattractant Research Bernhard Moser,2016-01-07 In the Research Topic History of Chemoattractant Research we will portray some of the key discoveries that helped to transform cell migration research into a global playing field within immunology and beyond Early progress had a profound effect on both academia and industry Today numerous academic laboratories are fully engaged in compiling a detailed road map describing the highly complex network of immune and tissue cells that respond to chemoattractants Industrial research on the other hand centers on drugs that interfere with immune cell traffic in inflammatory diseases and cancer The following series of short stories provide personal accounts on key discoveries The individual molecular discoveries enabled numerous research laboratories worldwide to unravel their significance in steady state or pathological immune processes Although ground breaking in their own right it is therefore worth emphasizing that rapid progress in chemoattractant research was made possible by many other laboratories who were not directly involved in the original discovery process Therefore the authors of this mini series are discussing their findings in the context of time place and subsequent progress enabled by their discoveries It is hoped that a wide readership will find these accounts entertaining as well as educational although those who wish to gain a more detailed knowledge are referred to the many outstanding reviews on chemokines and other chemoattractants

Tertiary lymphoid structures (TLS) in the tumor immune microenvironment Ying Ma,Hui Zhao,2025-02-06 Cancer has become the most common disease worldwide With their extremely aggressive nature of growth many cancer types portend dismal 5 year survival rates Chemotherapy as the conventional treatment option is the mainstay of treatment for these malignancies and while some patients derive remarkable clinical response ultimately chemoresistance prevails This resistance highlights the self renewal of tumor cells and reflects its notorious capacity to mediate a microenvironment that is tumor protective Recently immunotherapy achieved great successes in tumors with abundant lymphocytes influx such as melanoma and lung cancer But none of the immunotherapeutic regimens have been effective in immune privileged cancers reflecting an immune suppressive microenvironment that is lack of immune cell infiltration along with the tumor initiation development and progression as known as cold tumor Influence of potential diagnostic

Opportunities, Volume I, 2nd edition Jiang-Jiang Qin, Wei-Dong Zhang, Huizi Jin, Sanjay K. Srivastava, 2024-01-11 This Research Topic is part of a series with Multi targeted Natural Products as Cancer Therapeutics Challenges and Opportunities Volume II Cancer remains a leading cause of disease related deaths worldwide despite recent advances in our understanding of cancer initiation progression and metastasis Chemotherapy and radiotherapy have been used as standard non surgical treatments of human cancer for decades however the survival rates of patients with cancer especially those with advanced diseases are still very low due to the high toxicities of these treatments as well as the severe side effects This fact has motivated researchers to discover new cancer therapeutics with minimum side effects which intensively promotes the rapid development of single specific molecule targeted therapies SSMTT Many efforts have been made in world wide cancer drug discovery research and several single molecule targeted therapies have been successfully developed Unfortunately most of the investments failed because cancer is a genetic disease and always harbors multiple alternations of molecules or genes at the genomic genetic and epigenetic levels The inhibition of a single molecule or signaling pathway by SSMTT frequently results in a hyperactive compensation of other cancer related molecules and signaling pathways as well as the subsequent development of drug resistance Therefore identifying multi targeted therapies i e drugs that are able to target multiple cancer related genes proteins or signaling pathways is a more promising way to success in developing new cancer therapeutics Natural products especially those from traditional Chinese medicine and folk remedies in other countries are an extraordinarily important source for new drug discovery over the past decades Of note many natural products have often been demonstrated to target several crucial genes or proteins in cancer related signaling networks and exert synergistic effects For example Japonicone A a dimeric sesquiterpenoid from the medicinal plant Inula japonica has been found to inhibit tumor growth and metastasis by dually targeting the TNF NF B and p53 MDM2 signaling pathways Traditionally researchers have believed that the multi targeting mechanisms of natural products have limited their use in cancer treatment due to the low specificity and potential side effects The growing interest in developing multi targeted cancer therapies may provide another golden opportunity to develop natural products as new cancer therapeutics Nevertheless critical investigations for a comprehensive understanding of the molecular mechanisms of natural products also mean more challenges Our long term goals are to fully understand the molecular targets and mechanisms of action of anticancer natural products and develop them as novel cancer preventive and therapeutic agents The specific goal of this Research Topic is to bring together the recent findings of newly identified anticancer natural products especially those with multiple molecular targets Papers Original Research articles or Reviews which discuss the in vitro and in vivo efficacy and pharmacological and toxicological properties of natural products are also welcome to be submitted Guidelines for the conception and review of submissions As many anticancer drugs working as cytotoxic compounds have non selective effects annihilating their potential therapeutic benefits manuscripts are advised to provide evidence of a significant selectivity towards cancer cells vs healthy cells Specifically if the studied anticancer drug or modality does not target an oncogenic pathway the authors should make every effort possible to prove that the cytotoxic or cytostatic effects they have identified exhibit selectivity for cancer cells ideally 1 log difference in EC50 or IC50 vs non malignant cells eg fibroblasts or primary culture of cells The authors should also demonstrate the applicability of their anticancer modalities on a minimum of two well authenticated cancer cell lines ideally originating from distinct organs tissues For manuscripts dealing with plant extracts or other natural substances compounds the composition and the stability of the study material must be described in sufficient detail In particular for extracts chromatograms with characterization of the dominating compound s are requested The level of purity must be proven and included Please refer to the Four Pillars of Best Practice in Ethnopharmacology a subset of which concerning general standards in natural product research are applied to all such studies in all sections of Frontiers in Pharmacology

Regulatory frameworks to address antimicrobial resistance in the food and agriculture sectors Gobena, A.; Bullon, C.; Viinikainen, T., 2024-11-04 This Legislative Study elaborates on methods for addressing AMR risks and challenges through legislation It outlines the concepts and mechanisms relevant to address AMR for the twin goals of attaining responsible and efficient use of antimicrobials and the mitigation of AMR As such it aims to respond to the UN General

Assembly's call for strengthening of regulatory capacity as well as efforts to increase awareness and knowledge and share good practices and findings in the global fight against AMR

Cardiovascular Remodeling Yan Yang, Yi Zhang, Ming Lei, Gui-Rong Li, 2023-08-25 Although the treatment has greatly progressed the mortality of cardiovascular diseases remains the leading cause of death worldwide Serious cardiovascular diseases e.g. myocardial infarction heart failure cardiac dysrhythmias and stroke are resulted from cardiovascular remodeling secondary to the cardiovascular risk factors including hypertension atherosclerosis cigarette smoking diabetes mellitus hyperlipidemia aging etc Cardiac remodeling involves a series of molecular cellular and interstitial alterations which manifest clinically as changes in size mass geometry and function of the heart In addition vascular remodeling is an active process of structural alteration involving vascular wall thickening and lumen stenosis due to endothelial injury vascular smooth muscle cell proliferation and matrix deposition This results in atherosclerosis and or stenosis followed by myocardial infarction stroke etc Thus studies on the mechanism of cardiovascular remodeling and new therapeutic approaches are important scientifically and clinically Cardiovascular remodeling is a response of specific cardiovascular cells including cardiomyocytes endothelial smooth muscle cells and interstitial cells to noxious hemodynamic metabolic and inflammatory stimuli The remodeling may initially be functional compensatory and adaptive but it progresses to structural alterations that become pathogenic when the damaging stimuli are sustained The mechanism of cardiovascular remodeling is complex and recent studies focus on improving and or reversing the remodeling by clarifying molecular mechanisms and identifying novel therapies Pharmacological anti remodeling RNA based long non coding RNA and microRNA treatment cell based iPS cardiac repair and cell free exosome approaches have been shown to improve cardiovascular remodeling alongside proangiogenic pro survival proliferative and immunogenic factors stimulating endogenous proliferative potential of cardiomyocytes However though advanced studies have progressed the prognosis of the affected patients remains poor Therefore understanding novel mechanisms identifying remodeling biomarkers and developing new therapeutic drugs and approaches can lead to new therapeutic options for treating patients with cardiovascular diseases
