Developing Partnerships Kate Bedford, 2009 A nuanced critique of how the World Bank encourages gender norms through its policies Developing Partnerships argues that financial institutions are key players in the global enforcement of gender and family expectations By combining analysis of documents produced and sponsored by the World Bank with interviews of World Bank staffers and case studies Kate Bedford presents a detailed examination of gender and sexuality in the policies of the world's largest and most influential development institution Looking concurrently at economic and gender policy Bedford connects reform of markets to reform of masculinities loan agreements for export promotion to pamphlets for indigenous adolescents advising daily genital bathing and attempts to strengthen institutions after the Washington Consensus to efforts to promote loving couplehood in response to economic crisis In doing so she reveals the shifting relationships between development and sexuality and the ways in which gender policy impacts debates about the future of neoliberalism Providing a multilayered account of how gender aware policies are conceived and implemented by the World Bank Developing Partnerships demonstrates as well how institutional practices shape development The Elgar

The Globality of Governmentality Jan Busse, 2021-04-23 This book reinvigorates the governmentality debate in International Relations IR by stressing the interconnectedness between governmentality and globality It addresses a widening gap in the social sciences and humanities by reconciling Michel Foucault's concept of governmentality with global politics The volume assembles leading scholars who draw attention to the importance of approaching governmentality in IR from the perspective of globality and thereby suggests to consider governmentality and globality as fundamentally entangled Accordingly the contributors engage in a multifaceted debate about the relationship of governmentality and globality relating their views to the proposition that globality cannot be equated with the international level and should rather be considered as a genuine context of its own requiring distinct consideration The book builds on the increasing importance and popularity of governmentality studies not only by updating Foucault's concepts at a theoretical level but also by introducing novel empirical problems and practices of global governmentality that have not hitherto been explored in IR With a wide theoretical and empirical range it is relevant not only to IR in general and International Political Sociology in particular but to any student or practitioner in political science political theory geography sociology or the humanities

Value Making in International Economic Law and Regulation Donatella Alessandrini, 2016-01-29 This book examines the contemporary production of economic value in today's financial economies Much of the regulatory response to the global financial crisis has been based on the assumption that curbing the speculative excesses of the financial sphere is a necessary and sufficient condition for restoring a healthy economic system endowed with real values as distinct from those produced by financial markets How though can the intrinsic value of goods and services produced in the sphere of the so called real economy be disentangled from the artificial value engineered within the financial sphere Examining current projects of international legal regulation this book questions the regulation of the financial sphere insofar as its excesses are juxtaposed to some notion of economic normality Given the problem of neatly distinguishing these domains and so more generally between economy and society and production and social reproduction it considers the limits of our current conceptualization of value production and measurement with specific reference to arrangements in the areas of finance trade and labour Drawing on a range of innovative work in the social sciences and attentive to the spatial and temporal connections that make the global economy as well as the racial gender and class articulations of the social reproductive field within it it further asks what alternative arrangements might be able to affect and indeed alter the value making processes that underlie our current international regulatory framework
