Epistemology And The Psychology Of Human Judgment:

Epistemology and the Psychology of Human Judgment Michael A Bishop, J. D. Trout, 2004-12-23 Bishop and Trout here present a unique and provocative new approach to epistemology the theory of human knowledge and reasoning Their approach aims to liberate epistemology from the scholastic debates of standard analytic epistemology and treat it as a branch of the philosophy of science The approach is novel in its use of cost benefit analysis to guide people facing real reasoning problems and in its framework for resolving normative disputes in psychology Based on empirical data Bishop and Trout show how people can improve their reasoning by relying on Statistical Prediction Rules SPRs They then develop and articulate the positive core of the book Their view Strategic Reliabilism claims that epistemic excellence consists in the efficient allocation of cognitive resources to reliable reasoning strategies applied to significant problems The last third of the book develops the implications of this view for standard analytic epistemology for resolving normative disputes in psychology and for offering practical concrete advice on how this theory can improve real people's reasoning This is a truly distinctive and controversial work that spans many disciplines and will speak to an unusually diverse group including people in epistemology philosophy of science decision theory cognitive and clinical psychology and ethics and public policy

Wondrous Truths J. D. Trout, 2016 Explaining the world around us and the life within is one of the most uniquely human drives and the most celebrated activities of science The central idea of this book is that modern science triumphed through an awkward assortment of accident and luck geography and personal idiosyncrasy Wondrous Truths provides a fresh daring and genuine alternative to established views of scientific progress and recovers at once the majesty of science and the grand sweep of big ideas

Attention, Not Self Jonardon Ganeri, 2017-11-24 Jonardon Ganeri presents an account of mind in which attention not self explains the experiential and normative situatedness of human beings in the world Attention consists in an organisation of awareness and action at the centre of which there is neither a practical will nor a phenomenological witness Attention performs two roles in experience a selective role of placing and a focal role of access Attention improves our epistemic standing because it is in the nature of attention to settle on what is real and to shun what is not real When attention is informed by expertise it is sufficient for knowledge That gives attention a reach beyond the perceptual for attention is a determinable whose determinates include the episodic memory from which our narrative identities are made the empathy for others that situates us in a social world and the introspection that makes us self aware Empathy is other directed attention placed on you and focused on your states of mind it is akin to listening Empathetic attention is central to a range of experiences that constitutively require a contrast between oneself and others all of which involve an awareness of oneself as the object of another's attention An analysis of attention as mental action gainsays authorial conceptions of self because it is the nature of intending itself effortful attention in action to settle on what to do and to shun what not to do In ethics a conception of persons as beings with a characteristic capacity for attention offers hope for resolution in the conflict between individualism and impersonalism Attention Not Self is a contribution to a growing body of work that studies the nature of mind from a place at the crossroads of three disciplines

D. Trout, 2018

In All Talked Out J D Trout exemplifies the power of science in a philosopher's hands and takes a welcome look at the resulting fate of philosophy Based on his 2013 Phi Beta Kappa Romanell Lectures each chapter presents a novel and positive view of intellectual advancements with respect to traditional topics in philosophy and explains why these achievements occurred despite the archaic and often retrograde influence of philosophical doctrine and method Together these two lines of inquiry lead the reader to understand that while foundational reflection remains as necessary as ever philosophy as it is conceived of in the halls of academia no longer adds anything distinctively useful At its best philosophy is a place to grow new ideas But many other disciplines can provide such incubation At the same time however we don't have to kill philosophy but we do have to figure out what is worth preserving Following a spirited introduction the first lecture takes stock of the growing field of evidence based approaches to reasoning and in light of these scientific developments criticizes important failures in epistemology as it is currently practiced in the English speaking world The second lecture examines the psychological impulse to explain the resulting sense of understanding and the natural limits of cognitively appreciating the subject we have explained The final lecture presents the proper reaction to the idea that scientific evidence matters to responsible governance The Routledge Companion to Twentieth Century Philosophy Dermot Moran, 2008-10-27

Featuring twenty two chapters written by leading international scholars this major publication covers all the key figures and movements from Frege to Derrida and philosophy of language to feminist philosophy Knowing Science Alexander Bird, 2022

Bounded Thinking Adam Morton, 2012-11-08 Bounded Thinking offers a new account of the virtues of limitation management intellectual virtues of adapting to the fact that we cannot solve many problems that we can easily describe Adam Morton argues that we do give one another guidance on managing our limitations but that this has to be in terms of virtues and not of rules and in terms of success knowledge and accomplishment rather than rationality He establishes a taxonomy of intellectual virtues which includes paradoxical virtues that sound like vices such as the virtue of ignoring evidence and the virtue of not thinking too hard There are also virtues of not planning ahead in that some forms of such planning require present knowledge of one's future knowledge that is arguably impossible A person's best response to many problems depends not on the most rationally promising solution to solving them but on the most likely route to success given the profile of intellectual virtues that the person has and lacks Morton illustrates his argument with discussions of several paradoxes and conundra He closes the book with a discussion of intelligence and rationality and argues that both have very limited usefulness in the evaluation of who will make progress on which problems

Applying Scientific Reasoning to the Field of Marketing Terry Grapentine, 2012-10-03 Marketing decisions often misfire when driven more by beliefs than by knowledge This book will guide you on how to differentiate between the two and to think more clearly and correctly when making those decisions thereby increasing organizational success The author has based this book on the fields of epistemology the study of how knowledge is created and the philosophy of science the study of what it means for a science to be called a science The motivation behind the book is quite simple Given that science is so successful why shouldn't marketers borrow thinking and reasoning skills from science and apply them to marketing Indeed why not The book details the groundwork for learning how to apply scientific reasoning to the field of marketing such as some basic and important definitions What is a belief What is knowledge and identifies barriers to scientific reasoning giving an example from the Dow Chemical Company and just how Dow uses critical thinking and reasoning skills to make more effective marketing and business decisions You'll also learn some real thinking tools you will need to apply scientific reasoning to solving your marketing problems It introduces topics relating to attributes versus constructs the meaning of causation the relationship between coherence and justified beliefs the importance of logic to sound reasoning and the avoidance of logical fallacies in making sound recommendations The book concludes by giving you direction to further improve your ability to apply scientific reasoning to solving marketing problems
