Democracy Education Collected Perspectives 2014 Volume 1:

Business Ethics Education and the Pragmatic Pursuit of the Good Francis J. Schweigert, 2016-08-12 This book is an extended argument for the critical importance which justice and ethical leadership should have in business ethics education. The book examines the history of ideas and purposes in education, the contemporary role of business schools and the social foundations of moral education to conclude that the pragmatic pursuit of the good must be a central aim of business strategy. To meet the challenges of facing society today, the masters of business must be moral craftsmen in a just and democratic private property economy that serves the common good. The author grounds this vision for business leadership in the centrality of systems of exchange in human society in generating prosperity and providing for the general welfare. Business ethics education has focused primarily on moral formation of individual leaders and managers in the context of ethical codes, organizational culture and legal compliance. Important as this approach is, it fails to generate a sufficient level of business responsibility to satisfy legitimate social concerns regarding the use of natural resources, environmental sustainability, reasonable limitation of systemic risk in capital markets and fair allocation of goods and services. If the social purpose of business is not intentionally embraced and diligently pursued, the economy may enrich a few but impoverish the society, its resources and its democracy. Hence, this book argues for a new vision of business ethics that is grounded in public accountability of business operations and outcomes for the common good as a matter of justice.

Hungary's Crisis of Democracy Peter Wilkin, 2016-08-26 This book examines the crisis of democracy that has arisen in Hungary since the election of the Fidesz government in 2010. After moving swiftly to transform the Hungarian constitution, Fidesz created a new political system which has led its critics to argue that the era of democracy in Hungary is over. US Senator John McCain has gone so far as to describe Hungary as an illiberal democracy on a path toward fascism. The author argues that Fidesz has sought to challenge the capitalist and democratic transformation that shaped Hungary for 20 years after the fall of communism by increasing the power of the state over crucial aspects of the economy, society and the political system. In so doing, Fidesz actions resemble those undertaken by many authoritarian states that have emerged since the end of the Second World War, all aiming to build up a national capitalism and protect their economies whilst undertaking nation building. To make sense of this, the author draws upon two traditions of thought, world systems analysis which situates Hungary in the context of its incorporation in the modern capitalist world system after the fall of communism, and anarchist social thought which provides a unique way of seeing the actions of states and political elites. In so doing, the book argues that the events unfolding in Hungary cannot be explained on the basis of Hungarian exceptionalism but must be situated in the broader political and economic context that has shaped the development of Hungary since 1990. The form of capitalism introduced in Hungary and across the region of East and Central Europe has systematically undermined the strong state and social security that had existed under communism, and when added to the failure of the left and liberals in the region, it has paved the way for far right and neo fascist political movements to emerge claiming the mantle of defenders of society from the market This represents a fundamental threat to the enlightenment traditions that have shaped dominant modern political ideologies and raises profound problems for both the EU and NATO

Culture in Education and Education in Culture Pernille Hviid, Mariann Märtsin, 2019-11-18 In a world where the global engagement and international dialogue intensifies some areas of cultivated knowledge suffer from this dialogue and this has consequences for people and communities We propose education to be such a case The global dialogue in education tends to be restricted to and mediated by standardized measurements Such standards are meant to measure qualities of education and of student behavior and create the sought for condition for normative comparability and competition The obvious drawback is that cultural variability in local living as well as in education is rendered irrelevant Are there alternatives The book insists on maintaining the discussion about education on a global level but rather than moving towards homogenization and standardization of education the attention is drawn towards the potential for learning from creative fits and misfits between concrete local cultures institutional practices and global aims and standards of education This work brings together a group of educational and developmental researchers and scholars grappling to find culturally informed and sensitive modes of educating people and communities Case studies and examples from four geographical contexts are being discussed China Brazil Australia and Europe While being embedded in these local cultures the authors share a conceptual grounding in cultural developmental theorizing and a vision for a culturally informed globalized perspective on education As the theme of the book is learning from each other the volume also includes commentaries from leading scholars in the field of cultural psychology and education

The Quest for a New Education Merethe Roos,2024-02-19 This book thematizes the tension between education politics and religion in Norway after the Second World War with an emphasis on the years between 1945 and 1970 and throws a new light on Norwegian school and education in the post war period The Norwegian educational landscape in the years after the Second World War must be seen against the development of the welfare state and it appears as a part of the social democracy project typical for Norway at that time The Labour Party which held a prominent position in the educational landscape in the post war decades is normally regarded to have been an important driving force behind secularization of schools in Norway not least because the total number of weekly lessons in religious education gradually was reduced This book problematizes this thesis and enlightens how important politicians and policymakers within the Labour Party defended religious education A central point is that this defense must be seen within the frames of a liberally oriented protestant theology Thus the study highlights the diversity of ideas in Norwegian politics in the post war period and demonstrates how important impulses in Norwegian politics can be viewed against a wider international background

Obstinate Education Gert Biesta, 2019-07-22 What should the relationship between school and society be Obstinate Education Reconnecting School and Society argues that education is not just there to give individuals groups and societies what they want from it but that education has a duty to resist Education needs to be obstinate not for the sake of being difficult but in order to make sure that it can contribute to emancipation and democratisation This requires that education always brings in the question whether what is desired from it is going to help with living life well individually and collectively on a planet that has a limited capacity for giving everything that is desired from it This book argues that education should not just be responsive but should keep its own responsibility should not just focus on empowerment but also on emancipation and through this should help students to become world wise It argues that critical thinking and classroom philosophy should retain a political orientation and not be reduced to useful thinking skills and shows the importance of hesitation in educational relationships This text makes a strong case for the connection between education and democracy both in the context of schools colleges and universities and in the work of public pedagogy
