How do you provide learning experiences that meet the developmental needs of every child in your care? The Feeling Child thoughtfully discusses the key principles of children's emotional and behavioural development alongside descriptions of everyday practice. It clearly explains how a child's early experiences influence their particular behaviours towards different people and different situations. Throughout the book, Maria Robinson considers the key characteristics of effective learning and shows how play is one of the key mechanisms that children use in their discovery of themselves and the world around them. These characteristics are then applied to integral aspects of early years practice to help practitioners to support children to come to new understandings in safe yet challenging ways, understand the ways in which children may approach or withdraw from learning opportunities, reflect on their own teaching methods to encourage children's engagement, motivation, and creativity through effective observation and planning, engage with parents and carers to help support children's learning.

Development Douglas Davies, Michael F. Troy, 2020-04-12 This book describes child development and how it can be applied to practice with children. Developmental knowledge provides a framework for understanding children in relation to the tasks and issues relevant to their age. These in turn are determined by physical, social, emotional, and neurodevelopmental norms that transform in meaningful ways from birth through adolescence. Only with a sound grounding in this knowledge can we determine whether a child's emotions, thoughts, or behaviors fall within normal expectations. Part I: Contexts of Development. A Transactional Approach introduces the idea that the child's development is the outcome of the interplay of normative developmental maturation and the context within which it occurs. Part II: The Course of Child Development represents the core of the book, looking at childhood through the lens of discrete expected stages.
