difficult issues are those of a self governing community concerned about safety controlling the drug use of some residents deciding who is allowed to tap into the electricity and worrying about intruders In all settings daily life for people without homes like daily life for people with homes is full of the concerns of personal relationships How will we share our goods and emotions speak respectfully to each other love and joke and work out our disputes and act in a trustworthy fashion This book is also a miniature research odyssey complete with moments of fear frustration blunders distrust and trust In order to gather these interviews Dordick had to not only win the confidence of the homeless people she visited the women at the Station thought she was interested in their boyfriends but also negotiate with unsympathetic police and shelters employees or defy them

Rainbow Farm Robert R Williams, 2020-03-10 Rainbow Farm is an account of the state of US political affairs since the election of Donald Trump as the Forty Fifth President It uses the same principle as George Orwell did in Animal Farm where certain notorious personalities come to life as animals on the farm It exposes the hypocrisy of both US political parties Donkeys and Elephants in their dealings with each other as well as their hypocritical views of other farms When it comes to US foreign policy it exposes how US criticisms of other farms actions are really actions that are the same as its own It shows how we all are similar in nature and one and the same with just different means trying to achieve the same ends You will immediately recognize certain personalities like the flamboyant Pete sexy Rex Shrii and Cam but other personalities portrayals are more cryptic requiring analysis to determine who that character may be The story begins with the arrival of Pete to the farm up to the point of the election and the aftermath of what is undoubtedly the greatest political upset in modern history Not all is serious and not all is politics Join the animals on the farm in their favorite pastime as they observe the annual bull riding competition on Justice watch Regan in her inferno as she slowly gets grilled by Sly and have a front row to the Hen s March the Coup and Inquisition Enjoy the in depth conversation between Rex and Pete and finally contemplate the final interview of the Wise Old Owl on numerous topics which are afflicting today s society There is something for everyone in Rainbow Farm Hopefully the result of reading it will be an honest self critique of ourselves and America and more acceptance of all things different

This collection investigates the world of nineteenth century Quaker women, bringing to light the issues and challenges Quaker women experienced and the dynamic ways in which they were active agents of social change, cultural contestation, and gender transgression in the nineteenth century. New research illuminates the complexities of Quaker testimonies of equality, slavery, and peace, and how they were informed by questions of gender, race, ethnicity, and culture. The essays in this volume challenge the view that Quaker women were always treated equally with men and that people of color were welcomed into white Quaker activities. The contributors explore how diverse groups of Quaker women navigated the intersection of their theological positions and social conventions, asking how they challenged and supported traditional ideals of gender, race, and class. In doing so, this volume highlights the complexity of nineteenth century Quakerism and the ways Quaker women put their faith to both expansive and limiting ends. Reaching beyond existing national studies focused solely on white American or British Quaker women, this interdisciplinary volume presents the most current research, providing a necessary and foundational resource for scholars, libraries, and universities. In addition to the editors, the contributors to this volume include Joan Allen, Richard C. Allen, Stephen W. Angell, Jennifer M. Buck, Nancy Jiwon Cho, Isabelle Cosgrave, Thomas D. Hamm, Julie L. Holcomb, Anna Vaughan, Kett Emma Lapsansky, Werner, Linda Palfreeman, Hannah Rumball, and Janet Scott.
