Instructional Models in Reading Steven A. Stahl, David A. Hayes, 2013-04-03 This book started with a simple idea: examine models of reading instruction that have emerged during the past 20 years. These models span a wide range of instruction representing a continuum from highly structured task analytic instruction to child centered and holistic instruction. Each model has its own epistemology or views on how reading and instruction are to be defined. The different epistemologies indicate different principles of instruction which in turn indicate different practices in the classroom. Each model is also supported by a different research base. In this volume leading proponents of these different models discuss their ideas about reading instruction thereby encouraging readers to make their own comparisons and contrasts. The chapter authors seem to adopt the editors' eclectic approach to some greater or lesser extent incorporating aspects of other models into their instruction as they see other goals. Thus models of reading instruction are complex. Complicating matters further is the fact that teachers hold their own models of reading which may or may not be congruent with those discussed here. Although academically developed models influence college preservice and in-service instruction, teachers' own models of reading filter the information that they take from what they learn from these perspectives. By carefully examining these variables, this book makes a firm contribution toward disciplined inquiry into what it means to teach reading.

Handbook of Reading Research, Volume II Rebecca Barr, Michael L. Kamil, Peter B. Mosenthal, P. David Pearson, 2016-11-18 A comprehensive overview of important contemporary issues in the field of reading research from the mid 1980s to mid 1990s, this well received volume offers readers an examination of literacy through a variety of lenses: some permitting microscopic views and others panoramic views. A veritable who's who of specialists in the field, chapter authors cover current methodology as well as cumulative research based knowledge. Because it deals with society and literacy, the first section provides the broadest possible view of literacy. The second section defines the range of activities culturally determined to be a part of the enterprise known as literacy. The third focuses on the processes that individuals engage in when they perform the act of reading. The fourth section visits the environment in which the knowledge that comprises literacy is passed on from one generation to the next. The last section, an epilogue to the whole enterprise of reading research, provides apt philosophical reflection.
