Emissions Trading as a Policy Instrument Marc Gronwald,Beat Hintermann,2015-07-17 Empirical and theoretical perspectives on the first two phases of the European Emissions Trading Scheme the largest cap and trade market established so far Emissions trading schemes figure prominently among policy instruments used to tackle the problem of climate change and the European Union Emissions Trading Scheme EU ETS begun in 2005 is the largest cap and trade market so far established In the EU ETS firms regulated by the scheme are provided with emissions allowances each a one time right to emit one ton of greenhouse gases and can sell their unused allowances to firms that have higher rates of emissions In this volume leading economists offer empirical and theoretical perspectives on the early phases of the EU ETS implementation The contributors discuss the features of the EU ETS market and regulatory uncertainty stemming from rule changes the political economy context of the trading scheme including allowance allocation and the influence of lobbying on abatement decisions the coexistence of such overlapping instruments for climate policy as pricing and taxation the relationship between spot and futures markets for allowances and firms responses to various features of the EU ETS including fluctuating allowance prices free allocation and links to the Kyoto process They show that although the basic theory behind emissions permit markets is straightforward design features market structure and interactions with other policy instruments can influence the efficiency of the scheme

Interactions Between China's National Emissions Trading Scheme and Electricity Market: Practices and Policies Tsun Se Cheong,Xunpeng (Roc) Shi,Yongping Sun,Jian Yu,Xin Yao,2023-11-03 China s national carbon market the world s largest emissions trading scheme ETS kicked off its first online trade recently This can be called a milestone for the country towards the nation s goals of having CO2 emissions peak before 2030 and achieving carbon neutrality by 2060 China s national ETS initially covers the power sector before being expanded to a much broader set of energy intensive industries On one hand the electricity sector the largest carbon emitting industry is responsible for about 40% of China s emissions and it has great significance to response to global climate change On the other hand the effectiveness of China s ETS will rest on how well it is coordinated with power market regulations and policies In this regard the deepening of reform as well as the advanced technology and its applications in the electricity market will add new challenges and opportunities to electricity trade which in turn influences national ETS Therefore this brings urgency to accurately capture the dynamic interactions between national ETS and electricity market to transform carbon trading into a practical and effective way to decarbonize the power sector      Modeling Decisions for Artificial Intelligence Yasuo Narukawa,Masahiro Inuiguchi,2009-11-03 This volume contains papers presented at the 6th International Conference on ModelingDecisionsforArti cialIntelligence MDAI2009 heldinAwajiIsland Japan November 30 December 2 2009 This conference followed MDAI 2004 Barcelona
