The Philosophical Review Jacob Gould Schurman, James Edwin Creighton, Frank Thilly, Gustavus Watts Cunningham, 1914 An international journal of general philosophy The Unknowable W. J. Mander, 2020-05-19 W J Mander presents a history of metaphysics in nineteenth century Britain The story focuses on the elaboration of and differing reactions to the concept of the unknowable or unconditioned first developed by Sir William Hamilton in the 1829 The idea of an ultimate but unknowable way that things really are in themselves may be seen as supplying a narrative arc that runs right through the metaphysical systems of the period in question These thought schemes may be divided into three broad groups which were roughly consecutive in their emergence but also overlapping as they continued to develop In the first instance there were the doctrines of the agnostics who developed further Hamilton's basic idea that fundamental reality lies for the great part beyond our cognitive reach These philosophies were followed immediately by those of the empiricists and in the last third of the century the idealists both of these schools of thought albeit in profoundly different ways reacted against the epistemic pessimism of the agnostics Mander offers close textual readings of the main contributions to First Philosophy made by the key philosophers of the period such as Hamilton Mansel Spencer Mill and Bradley as well as some less well known figures such as Bain Clifford Shadworth Hodgson Ferrier and John Grote By presenting interpreting criticising and connecting together their various contrasting ideas this book explains how the three traditions developed and interacted with one another to comprise the history of metaphysics in Victorian Britain Pragmatism and the Philosophy of Religion Michael R. Slater, 2014-08-14 Michael R Slater argues for the contemporary relevance of pragmatist views in the philosophy of religion
