these tools have led to confirming security guarantees as well as finding attacks in secure channel protocols including TLS and Signal. However, formal verification in general has not managed to significantly attract a wider audience. Verifpal is new software for verifying the security of cryptographic protocols. Building upon contemporary research in symbolic formal verification, Verifpal's main aim is to appeal more to real-world practitioners, students, and engineers without sacrificing comprehensive formal verification features. In order to achieve this, Verifpal introduces a new intuitive language for modeling protocols that is much easier to write and understand than the languages employed by existing tools. At the same time, Verifpal is able to model protocols under an active attacker with unbounded sessions and fresh values and supports queries for advanced security properties such as forward secrecy or key compromise impersonation. Verifpal has already been used to verify security properties for Signal, Scuttlebutt, TLS 1.3, Telegram, and other protocols. It is a community-focused project and available under a GPLv3 license. The Verifpal language is meant to illustrate protocols close to how one may describe them in an informal conversation while still being precise and expressive enough for formal modeling. Verifpal reasons about the protocol model with explicit principals Alice and Bob exist and have independent states. Easy to Understand Analysis Output: When a contradiction is found for a query, the result is related in a readable format that ties the attack to a real-world scenario. This is done by using terminology to indicate how the attack could have been possible, such as through a man in the middle on ephemeral keys. Friendly and Integrated Software: Verifpal comes with a Visual Studio Code extension that offers syntax highlighting and soon live query verification within Visual Studio Code, allowing developers to obtain insights on their model as they are writing it.
