Measuring Intangible Values Marie Harder, Gemma Burford, 2018-09-21 This book explores the complex problem of how to measure the success of social organisations projects and activities Whether improving a local situation organizing a campaign around sustainability or assessing the intangible effects of perceived social benefits currently we have only a very limited range of mechanisms for judging effectiveness On the one hand a market driven logic demands that qualitative perceptions and experiences are quantified into simplified and numerically defined variables On the other community projects are left unassessed as one off outcomes of local and situated processes that must somehow automatically make things better For academics researchers and other professionals working in this field this has resulted in the deep frustration of not being able to assess the things that are most centrally important higher human values such as integrity trust respect equality and social justice Measuring Intangible Values argues that we can make shared social values and their measurement central to decisions about improving civil society But because these social values are intangible we need to develop ways of eliciting and validating them at the local level that can capture people's shared meanings across multiple goals and perspectives We need to develop mechanisms for evaluating whether these values are met that use rigorous but also relevant measures And we need to develop ways of doing this that are scalable transferable and comparable across different kinds of organisations and fields of activity This book will be valuable for researchers in all social science disciplines which touch on human values such as sociology social psychology human geography social policy architecture and planning design and community studies
