themes like humanizing technology and optimizing the impact of the natural environment are brought together with clear policy thinking about what we need to do. The timing is good because the impact of this growing segment of society will have major repercussions on health care for the next 50-70 years.

Stephan Verderber Ph.D. A comprehensive guide to designing housing for the world's aging population. The dilemma of helping older people maintain their independence through better housing with services is growing. This book presents innovative solutions for those who create and provide housing for the world's increasingly longer living population. By focusing on three specific housing and service arrangements, it offers alternatives that provide greater freedom of choice than the current living arrangements that exist today. It presents selected examples of housing and service solutions from the US, Sweden, Denmark, and the Netherlands to stimulate thinking about the possibilities of community-based service models.

Housing Design for an Increasingly Older Population looks at a trio of options for housing the oldest old: the Dutch Apartment Condo for Life Model, AFL decentralized Small Green Houses, and the provision of enhanced personal and health care for people who want to stay in their own home. It offers unique and eye-opening chapters covering what older people want, what age changes affect independence, demographics and living arrangements, how long-term care is defined, concepts and objectives for housing the frail, care giving and management practices that avoid an institutional lifestyle, innovative case studies, programs that encourage staying at home with service assistance, therapeutic use of outdoor spaces, how technology will help people stay independent and more. Based on the author's numerous conversations with other experts as well as his examinations of high-quality settings from Northern Europe and the US, Building case study examples showcase innovative and compassionate solutions. In-depth coverage of three major systems that work. Examines successful programs such as PACE, Friendly Cities, NORC, and the Village to Village Network to demonstrate the progress made in helping older frail people stay in their own homes for as long as possible.

Housing Design for an Increasingly Older Population: Redefining Assisted Living for the Mentally and Physically Frail is an important book for those who create design and manage assisted living and skilled nursing facilities as well as for those who set policies regarding health and personal care for our world's aging society.

quality of life minimizes their physiological ailments and provide a caregiver's working environment that allows for efficiency and efficacy. Each project in the book is evaluated based upon its overall design and care program, the relationship between the general environment and the general care program, obstacles and resolutions within the building program, and/or the jurisdictional code requirements and other salient factors.

Handbook on Aging and Place Malcolm Cutchin, Graham D. Rowles, 2024-04-12 Moving away from studies of aging in place, this forward-looking Handbook focuses on aging and place, offering a broader scope and more nuanced, complex, and enlightening understanding of these two intertwined universals of human experience. Not only examining the latest literature, the chapters also challenge current thinking on the many intersections, opportunities, and issues around place and aging that need to be addressed through policy and practice.

Two Spheres Leonard R. Bachman, 2012 Proposes an aesthetic connection between two equal aspects of architectural design: the ideal and the reality. Addressing architectural thinkers from the broad realms of academia and practice, it is suitable either as a seminar text, a guide to contemporary design issues, or as a theoretical work.

Design for Aging Jeffrey W. Anderzhon, David Hughes, Stephen Judd, Emi Kiyota, Monique Wijntjes, 2012-03-05 Architecture Interior Design An in-depth look at the most innovative aged care facilities today. With the world's population aging at a rapid pace, there is a growing need for new ways to provide residential care for older people. Design for Aging explores some of the most successful examples of elderly housing today, focusing on integrating architectural considerations within an unwavering people-driven approach. Written by an international team of experts in aged care design, the book brings together twenty-six case studies from around the world, including Australia, Denmark, England, Japan, the Netherlands, Sweden, and the United States. The authors describe how each scheme has succeeded in addressing the needs of its residents, regardless of wide variations in design, geography, cultural factors, medical needs, capital cost, and other factors. Clear, well-documented information for each facility includes building descriptions and project data, and how the overall design fits within a geographical location. The type of community, including number of residents, ethnicity, and specific conditions such as dementia. How to apply universal design principles in different political, social, and regulatory contexts. How to create a sense of belonging and well-being for residents while building strong connections with the community at large. What makes a facility able to attract and retain high-quality caregivers. Environmental sustainability issues, plus indoor and outdoor spaces. Architects and interior designers, as well as facility owners and caregivers, will find Design for Aging an inspiring and practical guide on how to navigate the many factors involved in creating good designs for aged care environments.
