A Navy Second to None Michael D. Besch, 2001-11-30 Previous studies of the American Navy's role in World War I have emphasized the combat and logistical tasks such as anti submarine warfare convoy protection and the transportation of military supplies and troops to Europe While these activities were of crucial importance in winning the war the effort that involved the largest number of men was training The Navy increased in size from about 59 000 men in late 1916 to nearly 530 000 by the end of the war in November 1918 In a brief 19 months the Navy trained over 400 000 men This story covers the three main divisions of enlisted training the training stations the reserve training camps and the advanced or specialty schools as well as an account of the building of the bases and changes in the curriculum Besch goes to great lengths to convey a sense of what life was like in the camps stations ships and bases In addition to all the major training locations topics include fleet submarine officer and aviation training Colleges and universities also played an important role in naval training Sources for the study include archives from around the country while stories drawn from diaries letters and oral histories add a personal element to the account The Library Catalogs of the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution, and Peace, Stanford University Hoover Institution on War, Revolution, and Peace,1969 United States Naval History United States. American Foreign Policy and Postwar Reconstruction Jeff Bridoux,2013-01-11 On the eve of the invasion of Iraq President G W Bush argued that if setting up democracy in Japan and Germany after WW II was successful then it should also be successful in Iraq This book provides a detailed comparison of the reconstruction of Japan from 1945 to 1952 with the current reconstruction of Iraq evaluating the key factors affecting the success or failure of such projects The book seeks to understand why American officials believed that extensive social reengineering aiming at seeding democracy and economic development is replicable through identifying factors explaining the outcome of U S led post conflict reconstruction projects

The analysis reveals that in addition to the effective use of material resources of power the outcome of reconstruction projects depends on a variety of other intertwined factors and Bridoux provides a new analytical framework relying on a Gramscian concept of power to develop a greater understanding of these factors and the ultimate success or failure of these reconstruction projects Appraising the effectiveness of American power in the contemporary international structure this work is a significant contribution to the field and will be of great interest to all scholars of foreign policy international relations and conflict studies
