Defining Hybrid Homeschools in America Eric Wearne,2020-10-28 Defining Hybrid Homeschools in America Little Platoons explores the idea of hybrid homeschools where students attend a formal school setting for part of the week and are homeschooled the rest of the week Eric Wearne observes that school choice in America typically comes in two forms programs set up for disadvantaged students and the more common form of choice that wealthy parents can exercise paying private tuition or moving to a more desirable school district While disadvantaged families in many places and wealthy families everywhere can exercise choice when it comes to schooling a sizeable group typically gets left out of those options the large number of families who are too wealthy to access state or local programs but not wealthy enough to pay for private schooling or moving expenses Wearne argues that this is a long term weakness for school choice in America the middle class is generally a well off demographic but is almost completely unserved when it comes to this large aspect of their children s lives However one low cost option has arisen to address this niche hybrid home schools Wearne cites existing research to argue for this model s efficacy for the middle class as a strong example of a healthy civil society and examines how policy definitions are breaking down and evolving in education as we challenge the existing definitions of schooling improvement have been persistently frustrated by the mediocre results of popular reforms. School and system leaders, policy makers and funders lack clear guidance as to the steps necessary to dramatically and effectively transform an educational ecosystem. Would be reformers need a playbook outlining clear strategies for rethinking outdated approaches to school and system governance, resource allocation, quality control, talent management and data use for the 21st century? In this volume a team of national experts addresses the major elements necessary for system redesign, describing in detail the steps needed at the community, school, district and state level by which to achieve it. Hoch, David P. Smith, 2011-09-09. Is much of Christian education in America distinctly Christian? Ron Hoch and David Smith say No. Instead, it is guilty of having adopted an ideology and methodology that strips it of the right to call itself Christian and the ability to fulfill a truly Christian mission. The authors claim that the fundamentally humanistic ideology of the West conditions and controls much of what is labeled Christian education. By talking about the need to integrate faith and learning, focusing on teaching methodology and operating schools in virtually the same way as government-run schools, many Christian academics betray captivity to the dogma that humans are the measure of all things and need to do what God has already done. As a result, much of what controls the conversation and practices in Christian academia echoes the humanistic arrogance of the West and offers no substantive alternative to it. In Old School, New Clothes, Hoch and Smith issue a call for Christian academics to own up to their own confession that all reality was created and integrated by God, damaged by sin and has already been reintegrated in and by Jesus. Thus, the emphasis in Christian education ought not to be what Christian educators are doing to redeem the culture, but on what God is bringing to the Church in order to redeem sinners. Only by recognizing that all human knowledge claims in every sphere are inherently theological and that God is truly seen in and experienced through knowledge of all things, will a distinctly Christian education be forged. Christian education must primarily emphasize the reintegration or redemption of teachers brought through right knowledge of Jesus that comes through every subject discipline and expressed
