Eenwording En Verbrokkeling Paradox Van De Regionale Dynamiek:

Re-aligning Actors in an Urbanized World I. Baud, J. Post, 2018-02-06 This title was first published in 2003 In the 1980s discussions on urban regional and international development were dominated by those advocating liberalism and free markets In the 1990s the experiences of many countries from the previous Soviet Union and those following socialist development models in the South have led to a renewed interest in the democratic institutions that underpin economic development processes Thus the state has come back into focus as an enabler a co ordinating agency working with a variety of other organizations in different forms of partnership aimed at urban and regional development At the same time increasing disparities between rich and poor have led poor urban households to organize collectively against poverty and to promote community and neighbourhood development This title examines how both these processes take place looking at patterns of fundamental re aligning between state civil society and the market in an integrated manner It focuses on urban and regional development because at the local and regional levels the direct interface between local government the local and global market and civil society organizations occurs The question of re alignment is considered from three main perspectives governance and community organization issues at local level urban areas as motors of economic development and their interface with globalization processes and urban areas as the nodes of regional development In each part of the book one of these perspectives is taken The contributions of the different authors are grouped around these complementary perspectives Changing alignment patterns also have far reaching implications In the last section the relation between research and policy around these issues is considered based on reflections by policy makers and academics who have been influential both nationally and internationally

The Territorial Factor Gertjan Dijkink, Hans Knippenberg, 2001 Nowadays political territoriality is profoundly put to the test by globalization the rise of the network society international migration and new types of risk that state governments find hard to control Yet new political configurations do not invalidate the relevance of territory and territorial identity right away Moreover people who want to escape or forget foreign dominace still reach for the traditionally sovereign state Eastern Europe Asia In this book an international group of political geographers analyse the meaning of post modern transfromation in territoriality at different geographical scales global inter national and local They cover such varied topics as the probability of a clash between civilizations the rise of World cities the disintegration of African States ethnic conflicts and politics in Europe the meaning of a supranational territorial order European Union the end of the welfare state nation building and its symbols Israeli cultural politics urban regimes and local conflict defense mechanisms The perspectives put forward match more general theoretical geography and political science and involve case studies from different parts of the World This important new study is of immediate interest to students of all levels of political science sociology social geography administrative science international relations contermpoary history and to policy makers and politicians
