Egyptian Tales, Translated from the Papyri: Second series, XVIIIth to XIXth dynasty W. M. Flinders Petrie, 2022-08-15 In the remarkable work Egyptian Tales Translated from the Papyri Second series XVIIIth to XIXth dynasty W M Flinders Petrie presents a rich tapestry of narratives drawn from the depths of ancient Egyptian civilization Crafted with meticulous care this collection manifests a confluence of linguistic agility and historical acumen offering readers a vivid portrait of the human condition as rendered in the hieratic script of the time Petrie s work stands as a testament to the enduring power of Egyptian storytelling revealing a society replete with intricate myths moral dilemmas and the timeless pursuit of destiny all ensconced within the literary context of translation and archaeological discovery nnSir William Matthew Flinders Petrie an esteemed Egyptologist and pioneer of systematic methodology in archaeology imbued this book with the insight of his excavational expertise and expansive study of Egyptian culture An illuminating facet of his broader oeuvre this collection reflects both Petrie s scrupulous attention to detail and his impassioned endeavor to render the ancient into the accessible it is a bridging of worlds from the scribes of pharaohs to the libraries of the modern reader Petrie s academic journey characterized by groundbreaking excavations and an indefatigable quest for knowledge not only informed his scholarship but also enriched the landscape of ancient world literature through works such as this nnThe second series of Egyptian Tales Translated from the Papyri is an indispensable volume for aficionados of Egyptology and for those enthralled by the perennial allure of ancient texts This assemblage of stories provides a rare window into the lives and philosophies of an epoch that laid many cornerstones of civilization Readers seeking to immerse themselves in the lore of the Nile and to traverse the corridors of history through the art of storytelling will find this work an invaluable companion as it illuminates the intellect and imagination of a people whose influence resonates through the ages Egyptian Tales Translated from the Papyri: IVth to XIXth dynasty Sir William Matthew Flinders Petrie, 2020-09-28 IT is strange that while literature occupies so much attention as at present and while fiction is the largest division of our book work the oldest literature and fiction of the world should yet have remained unrepresented to English readers The tales of ancient Egypt have appeared collectively only in French in the charming volume of Maspero s Contes Populaires while some have been translated into English at scattered times in volumes of the Records of the Past But research moves forward and translations that were excellent twenty years ago may now be largely improved as we attain more insight into the language For another reason also there is a wide ground for the present volume In no case have any illustrations been attempted to give that basis for imagination which is all the more needed when reading of an age and a land unfamiliar to our ideas When following a narrative whether of real events or of fiction many persons perhaps most find themselves unconsciously framing in their minds the scenery and the beings of which they are reading To give a correct picture of the character of each of the various ages to which these tales belong has been the aim of the present illustrations A definite period has been assigned to each tale in accordance with the indications or the history involved in it and so far as our present knowledge goes all the details of life in the scenes here illustrated are rendered in accord with the period of the story To some purely scholastic minds it may seem presumptuous to intermingle translations of notable documents with fanciful illustrations But considering the greater precision with which in recent years we have been able to learn the changes and the fashions of ancient life in Egypt and the essentially unhistorical nature of most of these tales there seems ample reason to provide such material for the reader's imagination in following the stories it may give them more life and reality and may emphasise the differences which existed between the different periods to which these tales refer It will be noticed how the growth of the novel is shadowed out in the varied grounds and treatment of the tales The earliest is purely a collection of marvels or fabulous incidents of the simplest kind Then we advance to contrasts between town and country between Egypt and foreign lands Then personal adventure and the interest in schemes and successes becomes the staple material while only in the later periods does character come in as the groundwork The same may be seen in English literature first the tales of wonders and strange lands then the novel of adventure and lastly the novel of character In translating these documents into English I have freely used the various translations already published in other languages but in all cases more or less revision and retranslation from the original has been made In this matter I am indebted to Mr F LI Griffith who has in some cases as in Anpu and Bata almost entirely retranslated the original papyrus The material followed in each instance will be found stated in the notes accompanying the tales

A History of Egypt During the XVIIth and XVIIIth Dynasties, 1896, with Additions to 1924 William Matthew Flinders Petrie, 1924

Egyptian Tales W. M. Flinders Petrie, Tristram Ellis, 2014-08-23 Tristram Ellis was a British visual artist who was born in 1844 Sir William Matthew Flinders Petrie FRS 3 June 1853 28 July 1942 commonly known as Flinders Petrie was an English Egyptologist and a pioneer of systematic methodology in archaeology and preservation of artefacts He held the first chair of Egyptology in the United Kingdom and excavated many of the most important archaeological sites in Egypt in conjunction with his wife Hilda Petrie Some consider his most famous discovery to be that of the Merneptah Stele an opinion with which Petrie himself concurred Petrie developed the system of dating layers based on pottery and ceramic findings William Matthew Flinders Petrie was born in Maryon Road Charlton Kent England the son of William Petrie 1821 1908 and Anne ne Flinders 1812 1892 Anne was the daughter of Captain Matthew Flinders surveyor of the Australian coastline spoke six languages and was an Egyptologist In his teenage years Petrie surveyed British prehistoric monuments commencing with the late Romano British British Camp that lay within yards of his family home in Charlton in attempts to understand their geometry at 19 producing the most accurate survey of Stonehenge His father had corresponded with Piazzi Smyth about his theories of the Great Pyramid and Petrie travelled to Egypt in early 1880 to make an accurate survey of Giza making him the first to properly investigate how they were constructed many theories had been advanced on this and Petrie read them all but none were based on first hand observation or logic Petrie's published report of this triangulation survey and his analysis of the architecture of Giza therein was exemplary in its methodology and accuracy disproved Smyth's theories and still provides much of the basic data regarding the pyramid plateau to this day On that visit he was appalled by the rate of destruction of monuments some listed in guidebooks had been worn away completely since then and mummies He described Egypt as a house on fire so rapid was the destruction and felt his duty to be that of a salvage man to get all I could as quickly as possible and then when I was 60 I would sit and write it all Returning to England at the end of 1880 Petrie wrote a number of articles and then met Amelia Edwards journalist and patron of the Egypt Exploration Fund now the Egypt Exploration Society who became his strong supporter and later appointed him as Professor at her Egyptology chair at University College London Impressed by his scientific approach they offered him work as the successor to douard Naville Petrie accepted the position and was given the sum of 250 per month to cover the excavation s expenses In November 1884 Petrie arrived in Egypt to begin his excavations He first went to a New Kingdom site at Tanis with 170 workmen He cut out the middle man role of foreman on this and all subsequent excavations taking complete overall control himself and removing pressure on the workmen from the foreman to discover finds quickly but sloppily Though he was regarded as an amateur and dilettante by more established Egyptologists this made him popular with his workers who found several small but significant finds that would have been lost under the old system

Famine Stela is an inscription located on Sehel Island In 1886 while working for the Egypt Exploration Fund Petrie excavated at Tell Nebesheh in the Eastern Nile Delta This site is located 8 miles southeast of Tanis and among the remains of an ancient temple there Petrie found a royal sphinx now located at the Museum of Fine Arts Boston By the end of the Tanis dig he ran out of funding but reluctant to leave the country in case this was renewed he spent 1887 cruising the Nile taking photographs as a less subjective record than sketches
