

Goldilocks and the Three Bears

The popular folk tale, Goldilocks and the Three Bears, provides many opportunities for fun learning activities across the curriculum. Here are some suggestions.

Social Studies

A Question of Character

Use Goldilocks' behavior in the story to spark a discussion of appropriate behavior. Ask children to think about some of these questions:

- Was it safe or right for Goldilocks to enter the bears' house?
- How would children feel if someone came into their house and did what Goldilocks did?
- What would happen to children if they did the things that Goldilocks did?
- What do you think happened to Goldilocks after she left the bears' house?
- What will the Bear family do next?

Extension: Have children pretend to be Goldilocks and dictate a letter to the three bears explaining her behavior. Or, conversely, children can pretend to be one of the bears and dictate a letter to Goldilocks telling how they feel about her behavior.

Math

Size Wise

Place three different-sized teddy bears (small, medium, and large), or pictures of three different-sized teddy bears, in front of three boxes. Gather a collection of objects, or pictures of objects, in different sizes to sort. Have children find the object most suitable for each sized bear. For example, a ping pong ball would be appropriate for "Baby bear," while "Papa Bear" would prefer a basketball.

All Sorts of Bears

Have children bring in their favorite teddy bears or other stuffed animals. Work with children to compare and then sort the different bears by color, size, or other attributes.

Porridge, Please

Make some instant oatmeal and divide it into small cups. Add some brown sugar or honey to the oatmeal. Draw a simple graph on the board with a column labeled with a happy face representing a favorable reaction and a column labeled with a sad face representing an unfavorable reaction. As children taste the porridge, write their names in the column that represents their reaction to the porridge. Discuss the results.

Science

Bears: Fact and Fiction

Read children a simple nonfiction book about bears. Contrast how real bears live—what they eat, where they live, and so on—with the fictional bears in the Goldilocks story. For a fun gross motor extension activity, have children pretend to be real bears. For example, they can pretend to catch fish, get honey from a hive, climb a tree, sleep in a den, or growl at danger.

Texture Time

Use Goldilocks' complaint that the bears' furniture was too soft or too hard to explore materials or classroom objects with those and other textures, such as smooth, rough, and slippery.

"Bear Claw" Treats

Children can make "bear claws" using refrigerated biscuit dough. Brush each biscuit with melted butter or margarine, sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar, and insert almond slivers around the edge so that the biscuit looks like claws. Bake the biscuits according to the package directions.

Language Arts

"B" is for Bear

Remind children that several words from the story such as bear, bowl, and bed begin with the letter B. Have each child draw a picture of something that begins with the sound of the letter B. Gather the pictures in a class book entitled, B is for Bear and More.

Using the Make-Your-Own Puppets Reproducible

Send the FingerTale puppet fun home with your students! Just reproduce the included story and puppets for each child. It's a great way for children to continue building language arts skills, from vocabulary development to listening comprehension.
