Resources in Education, 2001-10 Global Reconstructions of Vocational Education and Training James Avis, 2016-04-08 Vocational education and training VET can be difficult to define since it is set in a turbulent and volatile environment marked by national and regional specificities It can be delivered at different levels and by a variety of providers including community colleges colleges of further education polytechnics and universities as well as importantly private providers This collection reflects the shifting and often messy conceptualisations of VET On one level VET can be associated with the education and training of craft skilled workers or of those who are being prepared for a particular occupational destiny and specific position in the labour market In this instance notions of skill knowledge and dispositions are significant On another level it can raise questions over power and class formation in addition to the way in which these are mediated or intersect with race and gender Moreover there are important political questions addressing the significance of VET in furthering social cohesion and economic regeneration in times of austerity when neoliberalism is hegemonic The chapters in this book are not all of a piece but each in its turn raises important questions about VET its relationship to the economy as well as its global setting This book was originally published as a special issue of Globalisation Societies and Education
