Similarities

Characters such as Katcinsky and the Brunette French girl are described with "faces of the soil" and as having soft, brown skin. The opening scenes depict Paul and his comrades already behind the Front. The reader gets a more personal feel, as they are experiencing the war directly from Paul's thoughts.

Paul and the others have to teach the very young recruits how to survive the front.

The ending of the story is more depressing and disheartening, as Paul is listing all the ways his old friends died, before he himself dies.

Paul and all his comrades (besides Tjaden) are dead by the end of the story.

Kemmerich's boots are symbolic to the story and characters.

Overwhelming emotions, pain, and tragedies of war are shown and deeply expressed.

When on leave, Paul is terribly uncomfortable, and does not feel at home because of how ignorant his family and neighbors seem to be on war.

Paul and his comrades were brought to enlistment by their schoolteacher, only to see his preaching on war is not entirely how it truly is.

Characters such as Katcinsky and the brunette French girl are shown as caucasian.

The opening scenes show Paul and his classmates enlisting and training.

Paul's death is slightly more symbolic, with him reaching for a butterfly before he is shot.

Katcinsky is the one who teaches Paul and his classmates (the young recruits) how they are to survive the front.

There is a strong emphasis on the soldiers' boots after Mueller recieves Kemmerich's.

Science is a nontechnical how to manual. Especially for first year teachers. But even veteran teachers can benefit from the plentiful ideas, examples, and tips on teaching science the way middle schoolers learn best. The book covers all the basics: what to do on the first day of school, including icebreaker activities; preparing safe and effective lab lessons; managing the classroom; working with in-school teams as well as parents. But its practical and encouraging approach doesn't mean it shortchanges the basics of effective pedagogy. You will learn how to handle cooperative learning and assessment; how to help students write effectively; and the importance of modeling for early adolescents.

Literacy Instruction with Disciplinary Texts William E. Lewis, John Z. Strong, 2020-11-24 To develop strong disciplinary literacy skills, middle and high school students need to engage with diverse types of challenging texts in every content area. This book provides a blueprint for constructing literacy-rich instructional units in English language arts, science, and social studies. The authors describe how to design interconnected text sets and plan lessons that support learning and engagement before, during, and after reading. Presented are ways to build academic vocabulary and background knowledge, teach research-based comprehension strategies, and guide effective discussions and text-based writing activities. Chapters also cover how to teach students to write argumentative, informative, and narrative essays and to conduct discipline-specific inquiry. Special features include sample text sets and 24 reproducible planning templates. Other teaching tools: purchasers get access to a Web page where they can download and print the reproducible materials in a convenient 8 1/2 x 11 size.

Content Area Reading and Learning Diane Lapp, James Flood, Nancy Farnan, 2005-04-11 How can teachers make content area learning more accessible to their students? This text addresses instructional issues and provides a wealth of classroom strategies to help all middle and secondary teachers effectively enable their students to develop both content concepts and strategies for continued learning. The goal is to help teachers model through excellent instruction the importance of lifelong content area learning. This working textbook provides students maximum interaction with the information strategies and examples presented in each chapter. Content Area Reading and Learning Instructional Strategies Third Edition is organized around five themes: Content Area Reading: An Overview; The Teacher and the Text; The Students; The Instructional Program; School Culture and Environment in Middle and High School Classrooms. Pedagogical features: Each chapter includes a graphic organizer, a chapter overview, a Think Before Reading Activity, one or more Think While Reading Activities, and a Think After Reading Activity. The activities present questions and scenarios designed to integrate students' previous knowledge and experience with their new learnings about issues related to content area reading literacy and learning and to serve as catalysts for thinking and discussions. New in the Third Edition: The latest information on literacy strategies in every content area; Research-based strategies for teaching students to read informational texts; Up-to-date information for differentiating instruction for English-speaking and non-English-speaking students; An examination of youth culture and the role it plays in student learning; A look at authentic learning in contexts related to the world of work; Ways of using technology and media.
