Consumption And Identity At Work:

Consumption and Identity at Work Paul du Gay, 1995-11-28 The realms of consumption have typically been seen to be distinct from those of work and production This book examines how contemporary rhetorics and discourses of organizational change are breaking down such distinctions with significant implications for the construction of subjectivities and identities at work In particular Paul du Gay shows how the capacities and predispositions required of consumers and those required of employees are increasingly difficult to distinguish Both consumers and employees are represented as autonomous responsible calculating individuals They are constituted as such in the language of consumer cultures and the all pervasive discourses of enterprise whereby persons are required to be entrepreneurs of the self at work at play and in all aspects of their lives The first part of the book explores certain limitations in traditional approaches to the analysis of work identity It presents an alternative discursive framework in which to address contemporary re imaginings of organizational life within the culture of the consumer Part Two develops the analysis by looking at an arena where the blurring of the boundaries between work and consumption identities is most pronounced retailing The author builds a sophisticated picture of how discourses of reform take hold in particular contexts how they construct particular subject positions for employees to occupy and how employees negotiate these identities in their everyday working lives He concludes by considering the ethical and other issues of setting limits to enterprise
