academics and researchers interested in Tourism Ethics Sustainable Tourism and Wildlife Tourism The Routledge Handbook of Animal Ethics Bob Fischer, 2019-12-06 There isn't one conversation about animal ethics. Instead, there are several important ones that are scattered across many disciplines. This volume both surveys the field of animal ethics and draws professional philosophers, graduate students, and undergraduates more deeply into the discussions that are happening outside of philosophy departments. To that end, the volume contains more nonphilosophers than philosophers, explicitly inviting scholars from other fields such as animal science, ecology, economics, psychology, law, environmental science, and applied biology among others to bring their own disciplinary resources to bear on matters that affect animals. The Routledge Handbook of Animal Ethics is composed of 44 chapters, all appearing in print here for the first time, and organized into the following six sections: I. Thinking About Animals; II. Animal Agriculture and Hunting; III. Animal Research and Genetic Engineering; IV. Companion Animals; V. Wild Animals Conservation, Management, and Ethics; VI. Animal Activism. The chapters are brief, and they have been written in a way that is accessible to serious undergraduate students regardless of their field of study. The volume covers everything from animal cognition to the state of current fisheries, from genetic modification to intersectional animal activism. It is a resource designed for anyone interested in the moral issues that emerge from human interactions with animals.

Anthrozoology Geoff Hosey, Vicky Melfi, 2018-11-30 Anthrozoology, the study of human-animal interactions, has experienced substantial growth during the past 20 years, and it is now timely to synthesise what we know from empirical evidence about our relationships with both domesticated and wild animals. Two principal points of focus have become apparent in much of this research. One is the realisation that the strength of these attachments not only has emotional benefits for people but confers health benefits as well, such that a whole area has opened up of using companion animals for therapeutic purposes. The other is the recognition that the interactions we have with animals have consequences for their welfare too, and thus impact on their quality of life. Consequently, we now study HAI in all scenarios in which animals come into contact with humans, whether as pets, companions, farm livestock, laboratory animals, animals in zoos, or in the wild. This topical area of study is of growing importance for animals in animal management, animal handling, animal welfare, and applied ethology courses, and also for people within psychology, anthropology, and human geography at both the undergraduate and postgraduate level. It will therefore be of interest to students, researchers, and animal managers across the whole spectrum of human-animal contact.

Green Criminology Piers Beirne, 2017-07-05 In little more than a decade, Green Criminology has become an established new perspective in the field. It embraces an exciting and wide range of topics, from controversies about genetic modification through corporate offending against the environment and human communities to animal abuse. Green Criminology provides a focal point for longstanding and new areas of research, as well as making important interdisciplinary connections.
