Comparing Futures For The Sacramento San Joaquin Delta:

Comparing Futures for the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta Jay R. Lund, 2008 For over 50 years California has been pumping water through the Sacramento San Joaquin Delta for extensive urban and agricultural uses around the state Today the Delta is ailing and in urgent need of a new management strategy This report concludes that building a peripheral canal to carry water around the Delta is the most promising way to balance two critical policy goals reviving a threatened ecosystem and ensuring a reliable high quality water supply for California

Comparing Futures for the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta Jay R. Lund, 2010 Through in depth economic and ecological analysis the authors find that employing a peripheral canal at the Sacramento San Joaquin Delta as part of a larger habitat and water management plan appears to be the best strategy to maintain a high quality water supply while improving conditions for native fish and wildlife Comparing Futures for the Sacramento, San Joaquin Delta Jay Lund, Ellen Hanak, William Fleener, William Bennett, Richard

Howitt, 2010-02-02 An ecosystem in freefall a shrinking water supply for cities and agriculture an antiquated network of failure prone levees this is the Sacramento San Joaquin Delta the major hub of California's water system Written by a team of independent water experts this analysis of the latest data evaluates proposed solutions to the Delta's myriad problems Through in depth economic and ecological analysis the authors find that the current policy of channeling water exports through the Delta is not sustainable for any interest Employing a peripheral canal conveying water around the Delta instead of through it as part of a larger habitat and water management plan appears to be the best strategy to maintain both a high quality water supply and at the same time improve conditions for native fish and wildlife This important assessment includes integrated analysis of long term ecosystem and water management options and demonstrates how issues such as climate change and sustainability will shape the future Published in cooperation with the Public Policy Institute of California

Transitions for the Delta Economy, A Review of the Use of Science and Adaptive Management in California's Draft Bay Delta Conservation Plan National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Ocean Studies Board, Water Science and Technology Board, Panel to Review California's Draft Bay Delta Conservation Plan, 2011-08-19 The San Francisco Bay Delta Estuary is a large complex estuarine ecosystem in California It has been substantially altered by dikes levees channelization pumps human development introduced species dams on its tributary streams and contaminants The Delta supplies water from the state's wetter northern regions to the drier southern regions and also serves as habitat for many species some of which are threatened and endangered The restoration of water exacerbated tensions over water allocation in recent years and have led to various attempts to develop comprehensive plans to provide reliable water supplies and to protect the ecosystem One of these plans is the Bay Delta Conservation Plan BDCP The report A Review of the Use of Science and Adaptive Management in California's Draft Bay Delta Conservation Plan determines that the plan is incomplete in a number of important areas and takes this opportunity to identify key scientific and structural gaps that if addressed could lead to a more successful and comprehensive final BDCP The plan is missing the type of structure usually associated with current planning methods in which the goals and objectives are specified alternative measure for achieving the objectives are introduced and analyzed and a course of action is identified based on analytical optimization of economic social and environmental factors Yet the panel underscores the importance of a credible and a robust BDCP in addressing the various water management problems that beset the Delta A stronger more complete and more scientifically credible BDCP that effectively integrates and utilizes science could indeed pave the way toward the next generation of solutions to California's chronic water problems

The Fall and Rise of the Wetlands of California's Great Central Valley Philip

Garone, 2020-03-03 This is the first comprehensive environmental history of California's Great Central Valley where extensive freshwater and tidal wetlands once provided critical habitat for tens of millions of migratory waterfowl Weaving together ecology grassroots politics and public policy Philip Garone tells how California's wetlands were nearly obliterated by vast irrigation and reclamation projects but have been brought back from the brink of total destruction by the organized efforts of duck hunters whistle blowing scientists and a broad coalition of conservationists Garone examines the many demands that have been made on the Valley's natural resources especially by large scale agriculture and traces the unforeseen ecological consequences of our unrestrained manipulation of nature He also investigates changing public and scientific attitudes that are now ushering in an era of unprecedented protection for wildlife and wetlands in California and the nation

The End of Stationarity Mark Schapiro, 2016-05-17 Scientists have devised a new term to explain the turmoil caused by climate change the end of stationarity It means that our baselines for rainfall water flow temperature and extreme weather are no longer relevant that making predictions based on past experience is no longer possible But climate change has upended baselines in the financial world too disrupting the global economy in ways that are just becoming clear leaving us unable to assess risk and causing us to fundamentally re think economic priorities and existing business models At the heart of that financial unrest is the role of carbon and as the world moves toward making more and more polluters pay to emit it a financial mystery unfolds What are the costs Who has the responsibility to pay for them Who do you pay How do you pay And how will those costs ripple through the economy These are the questions veteran journalist Mark Schapiro attempts to answer as he illuminates the struggle to pinpoint carbon's true costs and allocate them fairly all while bumping up against the vagaries of the free market the lobbying power of corporations the political maneuverings of countries and the tolerance of everyday consumers buying a cup of coffee a tank of gas or an airplane ticket Along the way Schapiro tracks the cost of carbon through the drought ridden farmland of California the jungles of Brazil the world's greatest manufacturing center in China the carbon trading center of Europe and the high tech crime world that carbon markets have inspired He even tracks the cost of carbon through the skies themselves where efforts to put a price tag on the carbon left by airplanes in the no man's land of the atmosphere created what amounted to a quiet but powerful global trade war The End of Stationarity deftly depicts the wild new carbon economy and shows us how nations emerging and developed teeter on its brink Originally published in hardcover as Carbon Shock the book is updated throughout and includes a new afterword based on the Paris climate talks Carbon Shock Mark Schapiro, 2014 Nothing provided California Jeff Cummins, David G. Schulman, Emery Roe, 2016-04-13 The safe and continued functioning of critical infrastructures such as electricity natural gas transportation and water is a social imperative Yet the complex connections between these systems render them increasingly precarious Furthermore though we depend so heavily on interconnected infrastructures we do not fully understand the risks involved in their failure Emery Roe and Paul R Schulman argue that designs policies and laws often overlook the knowledge and experiences of those who manage these systems on the ground reliability professionals who have vital insights that would be invaluable to planning To combat this major blind spot the authors construct a new theoretical perspective that reveals how to make sense of complex interconnected networks and improve reliability through management regulation and political leadership To illustrate their approach in action they present a multi year case study of one of the world's most important infrastructure crossroads the San Francisco Bay Delta Reliability and Risk advances our understanding of what it takes to ensure the dependability of the intricate and sometimes hazardous systems on which we rely every day

Conflict Resolution in Water Resources and Environmental Management Keith W. Hipel, Liping Fang, Johannes Cullmann, Michele Bristow, 2015-04-13 The latest developments regarding the theory and practice of effectively resolving conflict in water resources and environmental management are presented in this book by respected experts from around the globe Water conflicts are particularly complex and challenging to solve because water and environmental issues span both the societal realm in which people and organizations interact and the physical world which sustains all human activities For instance when large scale water diversions take place across political jurisdictions conflicts may ensue among stakeholders within and across regions while the water transfers may cause severe damage to sensitive ecological systems Therefore to arrive at realistic and fair resolutions one must take into account not only the economics and politics of the situation but also the water quantity and quality changes that may occur within the altered hydrological system as well as the ecosystems contained therein When the effects of climate change and the closely connected activities of energy production and usage are also considered the complexity of the problem becomes even greater and messier Accordingly one must adopt an integrative and adaptive approach to water and environmental governance that specifically recognizes the conflicting value systems of stakeholders including nature and future generations even though they are not present at the bargaining table The 16 chapters in this leading edge book are written by authors who presented their original research at the International Conference on Water Resources and Environment Research ICWRER 2013 which was held in Koblenz Germany from June 3rd to 7th 2013 and subsequently submitted expanded versions of their research for review and publication in this timely book The rich range of contributions are put into perspective in the first chapter and then categorized into four main interconnected parts Part I Management and Evaluation Part II Global Trans boundary and International Dimensions Part III Consensus building Bargaining and Negotiation Part IV Ecological and Socio economic Impacts
