neighbours bilateral relations to volcanoes and typhoons influencing intra state conflict in the Philippines Dictatorships are amongst the case studies such as Cuba and Burma along with democracies such as the USA and India No evidence is found to suggest that disaster diplomacy is a prominent factor in conflict resolution Instead disaster related activities often influence peace processes in the short term over weeks and months provided that a non disaster related basis already existed for the reconciliation That could be secret negotiations between the warring parties or strong trade or cultural links Over the long term disaster related influences disappear succumbing to factors such as a leadership change the usual patterns of political enmity or belief that an historical grievance should take precedence over disaster related bonds This is the first book on disaster diplomacy Disaster politics interactions have been studied for decades but usually from a specific political framing covering a specific geographical area or from a specific disaster framing As well plenty of quantitative work has been completed yet the data limitations are rarely admitted openly or thoroughly analysed Few publications bring together the topics of disasters and politics in terms of a disaster diplomacy framework yielding a grounded qualitative scientific point of view on the topic

ENSO Signal Network Newsletter, 2003 Life in the Hothouse Melanie Lenart, 2010-05-15 In this insightful compelling and highly readable work Melanie Lenart an award winning journalist and science writer who holds a PhD in Natural Resources and Global Change examines global warming with the trained eye of a professional scientist And she presents the science in a clear straightforward manner Why does the planet s warming produce stronger hurricanes rising seas and larger floods Simple says Lenart The Earth is just doing what comes naturally Just as humans produce sweat to cool off on a hot day the planet produces hurricanes floods wetlands and forests to cool itself off Life in the Hothouse incorporates Lenart's extensive knowledge of climate science including the latest research in climate change and the most current scientific theories including Gaia theory which holds that the Earth has some degree of climate control built in As Lenart points out scientists have been documenting stronger hurricanes and larger floods for many years There is a good reason for this she notes Hurricanes help cool the ocean surface and clear the air of carbon dioxide the main greenhouse gas responsible for global warming From the perspective of Gaia theory these responses are helping to slow the ongoing global warming and Lenart expounds upon this in a clear and understandable fashion There is hope Lenart writes If we help sustain Earth's natural defense systems including wetlands and forests perhaps Mother Earth will no longer need to rely as much on the cooling effects of what we call natural disasters many of which carry a human fingerprint At a minimum she argues these systems can help us survive the heat
