Routledge Handbook of

Environmental Displacement and Migration Robert McLeman, François Gemenne, 2018-03-09 The last twenty years have seen a rapid increase in scholarly activity and publications dedicated to environmental migration and displacement and the field has now reached a point in terms of profile, complexity and sheer volume of reporting that a general review and assessment of existing knowledge and future research priorities is warranted. So far, such a product does not exist. The Routledge Handbook of Environmental Displacement and Migration provides a state-of-the-science review of research on how environmental variability and change influence current and future global migration patterns and in some instances trigger large-scale population displacements. Drawing together contributions from leading researchers in the field, this compendium will become a go-to guide for established and newly interested scholars, for government and policymaking entities and for students and their instructors. It explains theoretical, conceptual and empirical developments that have been made in recent years, describes their origins and connections to broader topics including migration research, development studies and international public policy and law and highlights emerging areas where new and/or additional research and reflection are warranted. The structure and the nature of the book allow the reader to quickly find a concise review relevant to conducting research or developing policy on particular topics and to obtain a broad, reliable survey of what is presently known about the subject.

Climate Change, Policy and Security Donald Wallace, Daniel Silander, 2018-04-17 This book examines the multiple strategies proposed by the international community for addressing global climate change (GCC) from both human and state security perspectives. It examines what is needed from major states working within the UN framework to engage with the multiple dimensions of a strategy that addresses GCC and its impacts where such engagement promotes both human and state security. Two broad frameworks for approaching these issues provide the basis of discussion for the individual chapters which discuss the strategies being undertaken by major state powers: the US, the EU, China, India, Japan and Russia. The first framework considers the multiple strategies, mitigation, adaptation and capacity building required of the international community to address the effects of GCC. The second framework considers the differentiation of GCC policies in terms of security and how the efficacy of these strategies could be impacted by whether priority is given to state security over human security concerns. This book will be of much interest to students of human security, climate change, foreign policy and International Relations.
