Medieval Textiles across

Eurasia, c. 300–1400 Patricia Blessing, Elizabeth Dospěl Williams, Eiren L. Shea, 2023-05-25 This study considers the textiles made, traded and exchanged across Eurasia from late antiquity to the late Middle Ages with special attention to the socio-political and cultural aspects of this universal medium. It presents a wide range of textiles used in both domestic and religious settings as dress and furnishings and for elite and ordinary owners. The introduction presents historiographical background to the study of textiles and explains the conditions of their survival in archaeological contexts and museums. A section on the materials and techniques used to produce textiles is followed by those outlining textile production industry and trade across Eurasia. Further sections examine the uses for dress and furnishing textiles and the appearance of imported fabrics in European contexts, addressing textiles' functions and uses in medieval societies. Lastly, a concluding section on textile aesthetics connects fabrics to their broader visual and material context.

European Memory in Populism Chiara De Cesari, Ayhan Kaya, 2019-10-08 European Memory in Populism explores the links between memory and populism in contemporary Europe. Focusing on circulating ideas of memory, especially European memory in contemporary populist discourses, the book also analyses populist ideas in sites and practices of remembrance that usually tend to go unnoticed. More broadly, the theoretical heart of the book reflects upon the similarities, differences and slippages between memory, populism, nationalism and cultural racism and the ways in which social memory contributes to give substance to various ideas of what constitutes the people in populist discourse and beyond. Bringing together a group of political scientists, anthropologists and cultural and memory studies scholars, the book illuminates the relationship between memory and populism from different angles and in different contexts. The contributors to the volume discuss dominant notions of European heritage that circulate in the public sphere and in political discourse and consider how the politics of fear relates to such notions of European heritage and identity across and beyond Europe and the European Union. Ultimately, this volume will shed light on how notions of a shared European heritage and memory can be used not only to include and connect Europeans but also to exclude some of them. Investigating the ways in which nationalist populist forces mobilize the idea of a shared homogeneous European civilization, European Memory in Populism will be of interest to scholars and students in the fields of European studies, heritage and memory studies, migration studies, anthropology, political science and sociology. Chapters 1, 4, 6 and 10 of this book are freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF under a Creative Commons Attribution Non-Commercial No Derivatives 4.0 license.
