Global Environmental Change and Innovation in International Law Neil Craik, Cameron S. G. Jefferies, Sara L. Seck, Tim Stephens, 2018-06-28 The challenges to global order posed by rapid environmental change are increasingly recognized as defining features of our time In this groundbreaking work the concept of innovation is deployed to explore normative and institutional responses in international law to such environmental change by addressing two fundamental themes first whether law can foresee prevent and adapt to environmental transformations and second whether international legal responses to social economic and technological innovation can appropriately reflect the evolving needs of contemporary societies at national and international scales Using a range of case studies the contributions to this collection track innovation descriptively normatively and as a process in and of itself to explain international environmental law s functionality in the Anthropocene This book should be read by anyone interested in the critical intersection of environmental and international law

From Charity to Justice Vincent Fang, 2021-05-03 This book focuses on the ethical demands of extreme poverty and develops a political theory of practical change. Welding together political realism and moral aspirations, it argues that a reimagined form of development NGO can help the global North break free from the dominant and persistent charity paradigm and drift towards a justice-based understanding of extreme poverty. It offers an original explanation of why the charity paradigm persists and why the justice-not-charity messages from development NGOs have changed few minds. The author argues that anyone concerned with a paradigm shift from charity to justice needs to radically rethink the problem of political communication: who should communicate what messages about extreme poverty in what ways. Based on a rational choice critique of the competitive development NGO sector, the author calls for sector-wide reform and the emergence of a new political agent: the Avant-garde NGO, which transcends the charity frame that NGOs currently find themselves locked in. Further inspired by literary theory and social psychology, he offers a fresh account of how the Avant-garde NGO could, through reflective public engagement, induce attitude change and lead genuine social and political reform.

Economic Development at the Community Level Mark M. Miller, 2020-11-22 How do we create more economic opportunities in the low-income communities of the developing world? How can these communities build greater resilience against economic uncertainties, natural disasters, wars, and the growing threats of climate change? This book reviews the research literature of economic development in low-income communities of the developing world, from rural villages to neighborhoods in the largest cities on earth. This book is unique in gathering, organizing, and synthesizing research on economic development at the community level across the developing world, drawing from multiple disciplines, publications, methodologies, regions, and countries. Part I provides an overview and context of the many challenges facing the developing world today, as well as the often-heated debates over what development is and how to make it happen. Part II reviews the extensive research literature in major fields of community economic development, including education and human capital, overcoming the curse of natural resources, entrepreneurship and micro-finance, tourism, and sustainability. The audience includes undergraduate students interested in development and sustainability, graduate students, and other young researchers in a wide range of disciplines who are finding their own focuses, and established researchers who wish to expand their agendas. An expanded bibliography accompanies the book as a downloadable supplement.
